Rumbling Noise and Issuance of Smoke From Stope First Sign of Catastrophe

An unknown Lorenz was found [illegible] all fours on the ground trying to [illegible] his way through the debris to safety.

It is [illegible] that the cause of the explosion may never be known as all who were in a position to know were killed.

While Superintendent Lorenz was in the mine at the time of the first explosion he was about 600 feet from it and it is not thought that he knows the cause. He is not in condition to talk.

Men Killed in Three Ways.

While the impression seems to be that the first explosion was that of dynamite it is also possible that it might have been due to gas. The men were killed in three different ways. Some of them were violently hurled against the side of the tunnel in which they were working and crushed, some were burned to death by the explosion of gas and others were suffocated by

BRITO HELD FOR MEXICAN GOVT.

WILL SEEK RELEASE BY HABEAS CORPUS

U. S. Officials Also Arrested in Connection With Alleged Blackmail Plot

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Emilio Castillo Brito, former governor of the Mexican state of Campeche, who was arrested here today by the federal authorities on a charge of murder and robbery, preferred by the Mexican authorities, will seek to effect his release from the parish prison, where he is being held without bail, by habeas corpus proceedings in the federal court.

This was announced tonight after a conference between Brito and his attorneys, who said that the writ would be sued on the ground that Brito had committed no offense against the United States and that the offense against Mexico upon which he is detained was not a statutory offense, but a political one, and therefore not extraditable.

R. Raymond Matthews, special agent of the United States department of justice, who was arrested last night accused of blackmailing Brito and of having shared in $500 obtained from Brito, was paroled tonight until Monday by District Attorney Luxenberg. Matthews insisted that he took the $500 from Brito in order that he might have a charge against the Mexican of attempting to bribe an American officer.

Held for Trial.

Mexico in emergencies, developed a feeling in official circles that the American government would endeavor in any crisis to remove Americans expeditiously from the trouble zones.

With Americans out of Mexico, or at any rate those parts where chaos may develop, the United States government would feel less responsibility for the progress of events there, and would assume the role of an observer.

Senate to Hear Both Sides.

With the idea of obtaining a first-hand information about the situation, especially in connection with the pleas being made to lift the embargo on arms, the senate foreign relations committee has determined to permit a number of persons representing the factions in Mexico to appear before it. Gen. Eduardo Hay, who took part in many battles in the Madero revolution as well as the present conflict, and a former speaker of the Mexican chamber of deputies, will give the senate foreign relations committee the Constitutionalist side of the argument next week. Suggestions were made today that Mrs. Francisco Madero, widow of the former president, and Alfonso Madero, a brother, be invited to come before the committee. They would refute the statement of conditions recited by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson recently, and there is a feeling among senators that they should hear both sides in the controversy over the events that led to Madero's death.

The senate committee, likewise, desires to be in a position to understand the general situation when President Wilson submits to them his recommendations on policies.

HANAN JEWELS ARE FOUND IN BOSTON?

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—The jewels valued at $125,000, which have been reported as missing from the summer house of Mrs. John H. Hanan at Narragansett Pier since the night of July 25, have been located in the safe of a Beacon brokerage house, according to an unconfirmed story published here today. The head of a detective agency in this city, which has been at work on the case, refused to confirm or deny the report.

According to the published story, the jewels were left as security for a loan of $60,000. They were pledged, it is said, by parties known to members of the firm. How the persons involved got possession of the gems, the story adds, is not known.

Missouri Corn Crop Loses During July

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 2.—The Missouri corn crop dropped 16 points in July, according to the report of T. C. Wilson, secretary of the Missouri state board of agriculture. This deterioration was due to the lack of moisture.

The wheat crop, he reported, exceeded early expectations. Estimates show 63 per cent threshed and indications are that the average yield will be 17.22 bushels an acre. Many correspondents reported yields of 40 bushels an acre. The total wheat crop is estimated at 37,000,000 bushels, 15,000,000 in excess of last year's crop.

Mexican Wrecks Catholic Church

CLIFTON, Ariz., Aug. 2.—The Catholic church at Morenci, near here, was almost totally wrecked early today by an explosion of dynamite. This was the second attempt at destruction, the first having been unsuccessful. The bomb was placed under the main building of the church. Father Call, who was asleep in an apartment near the sacristy, was thrown from his bed, but escaped injury. Officers are proceeding on the theory that the work was that of a young Mexican who recently had sworn to destroy all institutions maintained by contributions from the working class.

bazar here, for his extradition as a fugitive from justice charged with murder and robbery. Immediately upon receipt of the request, the state department asked Attorney General Reynolds to order the Mexican's detention pending the arrival from Mexico of the necessary requisition and warrant for his extradition.

Both the alleged offenses are extraditable. Mexico must submit prima facie evidence of criminality and show that the acts were not political crimes.

Officials of the department of justice announced today the arrests of the agents Matthews and Mott, on charges of blackmail in connection with the attempts to apprehend Brito. Plans were laid for an immediate investigation. Comment was withheld pending a report from a special agent sent from Washington to New Orleans to make the inquiry. A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, expects a telegraphic report from the investigating officer on Monday.

The Coxes have spent more than $100,000 in the last few years developing Mushroom park, and it is said that the price for the sale of the property will not be less than that amount.

The developing company plans to use the part now plotted, which covers the east portion, as a site for residences for wealthy easterners, and the remainder of the plot will be divided into lots and sold for summer cottages, or the company will build the cottages. The company also plans to develop a water system for the park, and the two main attractions, the Balanced and Steamboat Rocks, are to be outlined in electric lights.

He has been active in a number of fraternal organizations in Lyndell, and by reason of his prominence in the trade union movement and his membership in the fraternal organizations he is one of the best-known citizens of the Salt city. In his capacity as a representative of the International Typographical union, Mr. Daley has displayed marked ability and diplomacy in the negotiation of wage scales and the securing of new members.

"One of his chief attributes is his loyalty to his friends, a loyalty that is returned with fervor because the people who know him but appreciate his worth and singleness of purpose in his trade union activity.

"Mr. Daley will go to the Printers home as a student of the institution, equipped to master all of the intricacies of the management, but recognizing at the same time that the superintendency of the home is a big job and one that must be approached with diffidence and patience, coupled with a determination to succeed. The two or three weeks that Mr. Daley will spend at the home with Mr. Deacon will be of the greatest value to the new superintendent. Mr. Deacon knows how to manage the home, as he has amply demonstrated, and he also knows how to impart this knowledge to his successor."

Swallows Poison, Tells Friends, Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—"I've just swallowed the contents of this Edison bottle," said Sylvan Schul, an artist employed by the Chronicle, as he walked into the city editor's office tonight.

Schul was so calm that he had difficulty in convincing the men around him. Finally he was rushed to an emergency hospital, but died in a few moments.

Schul was 24 years old, unmarried, and had been doing newspaper and magazine illustrations for several years. He told the city editor that sickness was his reason for taking the poison.

Man Shoots Woman on Fifth Avenue; Then Kills Self

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. A well-dressed man and a handsome young woman quarreled today on Fifth avenue until the man drew a revolver, shot the woman three times and then blew out his brains. There is little hope that the woman can survive.

By means of letters the man was identified as Abraham Fink of 86 North Division street, Buffalo. The letters were signed by Violet Rogers of 12 Vine street, Buffalo.

Witnesses say that the woman was reading a letter aloud. After repeatedly commanding her to stop the man drew his revolver and fired.

At the hospital the woman said that she was Rebecca Silverman, 21 years old, and that she lived with her brother in this city. Fink, she said, was a widower about 48 years old, who traveled as a jewelry salesman.

Fink had nearly $3,000 in United States currency and a large amount of Canadian money on his person.

the afterdamp which always follows an explosion in the mines.

The East Brookside colliery employs about 500 men. The colliery closed down Thursday evening for the week, but Charles Portland, a mining contractor, who has a contract with the Reading company to drive a tunnel, kept some of his men at work.

Superintendent Lorenz and Mine Boss Farrell were in the mine making an inspection and were about 800 feet from the tunnel in which Italian workmen were engaged. It was shortly before noon when the men on the surface heard a rumbling noise and from the mouth of the slope and from the air passageway at the fan house there came clouds of dust. A rescue party was quickly organized. The party was composed of Geiler, Murphy, Sauerstall, Behny, Korenhaver and Howard Hand.

Found Dead at Bottom.

The rescuers were lowered in the slope, at a depth of 1,200 feet at a pitch of 40 degrees down to the fifth lift next to the bottom of the mine. It is judged that the second explosion occurred about 20 minutes after the first. The rescuers had time to walk about 600 feet from the mouth of the slope where they were found dead.

When the contractor's force went into the tunnel this morning, they took with them 175 pounds of dynamite.

All [illegible] came out after a little search and gave it as their opinion that both Fassler and Kessler were dead. They encountered a wall of rock which they believed to be about 50 feet long and they think that the two men were caught and buried underneath this.

Fessler Not Recovered.

It is now certain that Fessler has not been recovered, as a peculiar formation of one hand is not found on the persons of any of the unidentified dead. A report came to the surface that rapping had been heard inside, but officials gave no credence to this, as they do not believe the men can be alive.

Hilary Zimmerman was the only man in the affected mine at the time who escaped with practically no injury. He was standing near the stope when the first explosion occurred and he was hurled a distance of 10 feet by its force, but was not rendered unconscious.

When the rescuing force explored the affected section of the mine they found most of the mules alive, although they were close to the explosion. They did not appear to be injured in the least, beyond a singeing of the hair.

One theory of the explosion is that when the muckers were cleaning up the debris their shovels struck a piece of unexploded dynamite and set off the 175 pounds which the men had taken in with them.

HAYES WILL TRY TO SETTLE SOUTHERN COLORADO STRIKE

LAFAYETTE, Colo., Aug. 2.—"I am going into the southern coal fields to look over the labor situation in that section of Colorado. I will then ask for a conference with the operators in the hope that the present strike can be settled honorable to all parties. If a conference is not on we will organize the coal miners in southern Colorado into union and go on a strike."

Such was the message delivered to 400 striking coal miners and their families by Frank J. Hayes of Indianapolis, who is the international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

AUTHORITIES REFUSE TO DEPORT MRS. MELCHER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 2.—The federal immigration authorities here refused today to institute deportation proceedings against Mrs. Clara Melcher, who says she has claims against Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski. An affidavit upon which a request for her banishment was based, said to have been executed by Sulkowski before he and his wealthy bride left this week on their honeymoon trip, was not given consideration by the immigration officials.

It was said by attorneys engaged by the Austrian nobleman that he intends to procure the deportation of Mrs. Melcher on the ground that she is an immoral alien.

WOMAN A SUICIDE; MIND UNBALANCED

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Church, 50 years old, divorced wife of Herbert S. Church, general superintendent of the Sinclair Packing company of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, whose body was found in a downtown hotel yesterday, committed suicide while temporarily insane, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury.

Mr. Church testified that his wife had been mentally unbalanced since the death of their only child two years ago and that last September she made two attempts to end her life. He said he separated by agreement from his wife and did not contest her suit for divorce. A letter left by the woman addressed to her husband told of visiting a cemetery, and said:

"We will be there soon."

She urged her husband to take good care of himself and signed the letter "Lovingly, Alice."

WASHINGTON, D. C., IS FULL OF LOBBYISTS

Labor Leaders Only Ones Who Admit They Seek Favorable Legislation.

By SIDNEY ESPEY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—It has been estimated by competent authorities that there are about 2000 lobbyists in Washington who do nothing during the sessions of congress but seek to have legislation passed favorable to the interests they represent. But few of them are out in the open. In fact, it is safe to say that but three of them are bold enough to say they are lobbyists, and they do not care who knows it. They will go up to a member of congress and say, "I am lobbying for ——."

The three men who are so open and above board in their declarations of being lobbyists are Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison and John Mitchell. They continually are lobbying in the interest of the workingmen, and they "don't care who knows it." They, themselves, are trailing members of congress, and whenever they need help they send out a hurry call which brings the president of any union which is interested in the character of legislation about to be passed or to be blocked, hurrying to Washington.

Gompers Hard Fighter.

Samuel Gompers fought one of the hardest fights of his life last session and won out against more than half the members of congress. He had inserted in the sundry civil appropriation bill an item which prevented the using of any of the money appropriated to carry out the Sherman anti-trust law against labor unions or farmers' association. Members of congress figuratively got up on their hind legs and howled themselves hoarse about "class legislation." It was "class legislation" from a certain point of view, but the 3[illegible] of the American Federation of Labor wotted not what they called it. He thought that money appropriated by congress to enforce the law should not be directed against the laboring men in their efforts to keep their heads above water in life's struggle.

He pleaded with this, pleaded with others and threatened others. He talked with President Taft. The president told him [illegible] that as a lawyer [illegible] the city [illegible] with him, but to [illegible] the plaintiff [illegible] filed by the Act of [illegible]

[illegible] day. [illegible] the city [illegible] take [illegible] and [illegible] at the [illegible] Gompers [illegible] Gompers and the labor "lobby" [illegible] Congress knew that the [illegible] at the [illegible] to [illegible] say they are [illegible] their medicine.

There are very few lobbyists of the Mitchell stripe in Washington nowadays. In fact, there never were any of his profession. Very of them openly are intimate with a few members of congress, and never ask them to vote this way or that. They hunt them out and find out the sentiment of congress and then hurriedly get in touch with their employers, who in turn come to Washington and personally call on members of congress and try to change opinions. If legislators by submitting a mile of figures which they show will ruin the industry they represent.

NATURAL AGENCIES CAUSE FIRES IN NAT'L FORESTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Natural, not human agencies, are responsible for most of the forest fires so far this year in the national forests according to reports to the forest service here from its field men. Whereas in former years railroads with their spark showering locomotives, campers and brush burners were the chief causes of fires, most of the destruction has been originated this year by lightning.

The officials here attributed this change to the educational campaign it has conducted among forest users as well as to the improvement of the fire patrol system. While only slight fires have been reported during the last week, the dry and windy conditions in southern Arizona and New Mexico make fire risk there imminent.

Lupus Worst Form of Skin Diseases

Here is a Home Treatment that Overcomes even Worst Cases.

Lupus or Any other Skin Disease may go Skulking Away if you use S. S. S.

A tiny pimple spreads to the side of the face and often covers the cheeks and bridge of the nose. It is very destructive to the tissues of the skin. No external treatments will overcome it, as the cause of lupus is from impurities in the blood supply. The only known method of cure is to get the blood supply under the control of S. S. S., the famous blood specific. Its action is quite remarkable and has direct influence upon the network of small blood vessels and glands in the skin.

Not one drop of minerals or drugs is used in its preparation. Ask for S. S. S. and insist upon having it. For illustrated book on skin diseases write The Swift Specific Co., 157 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga. Do not allow some zealous clerk to larrup the atmosphere in eloquence over something "just as good" as S. S. S. Beware of all substitutes.

BILLY SUNDAY COMES TO SPRINGS IN JUNE

Noted Evangelist Scheduled for Series of Meetings Next Summer

The Billy Sunday meetings which were once planned for June of this year, and which it was later reported would be held in September, are to be held in June of next year, according to reports which the Rev. Samuel Garvin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has received. If held then they will cover a period of six weeks from June 1 to the second week in July, and will take place in an immense tabernacle holding more than 10,000 people. Billy Sunday, it is understood, has requested this tabernacle, and it will be built in some place close to the center of the city.

The Ministerial alliance, backed by the Colorado Springs churches, has been trying to secure Sunday for more than a year. He is now at his ranch at Hood River, Ore. Before coming here it is probable that he will hold revival services at Steubenville, O., and Pittsburg, Pa. These cities have been making plans for the holding of his meetings for several years.

In case Billy Sunday comes to this city for the meetings, services will be held twice a day, in the afternoon and evening, in the tabernacle. Several other meetings will be held in other parts of the city, with Sunday or some of his assistants in charge. In his corps of assistants he carries his own singers and leader of singing, as well as people experienced in leading revival services.

Billy Sunday, formerly a baseball player, is probably the most successful evangelist in getting converts in America today. At South Bend, Ind., where he held his last meetings, there were more than 14,000 conversions.

CITY COUNCIL BALKS AT STREET CAR ORDINANCE

Measure Introduced by Johnson Regarding Use of Tee Rails by Users and Other Quasi-Carriers

[illegible]

[illegible] Commissioner Jones also declared that the company could protect itself in case of walk-out by an agreement with the men to give a week's notice of a strike.

The other commissioners and the mayor considered it too drastic because no provision is made for any unlooked-for contingency that may arise, especially in case of a strike.

The proposed ordinance is as follows:

"Section 1. No person, firm or corporation shall operate, or cause to be operated, on any street or streets of this city, any street car unless both the motorman and conductor, or other person in charge of such car, shall have first received instruction upon the various railway lines in the city for a total period of not less than seven days, the last day of such instruction to be under the immediate supervision of a competent instructor who shall certify to the fitness of any applicant for such employment prior to such applicant becoming the motorman or conductor or person in charge of such car.

"Section 2. Any violation of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred and fifty ($150.00) or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty (60) days, or both."

TRAVELOG MAN WILL SHOW BEAUTIES OF CALIFORNIA

Free Picture Talk and Motion Scenes by Carl Balcomb at Stratton Park Tonight

"California, Old and New" is the subject of the illustrated lecture to be given at Stratton park pavilion tonight at 8 o'clock by Carl Balcomb, Colorado Springs lecturer.

While in California last winter, Mr. Balcomb collected more than 200 views of various points of interest in California, and when he had the lantern slides made he personally supervised the work that the natural colorings might not be destroyed.

The views show the many beauties of the state, from its wild flowers to its great cultivated gardens, and from the heart of the Sierra Madre mountains to the coast. The lecture deals with California from the days of the padres, to the present, including what may be expected in 1915, when the great Panama-Pacific exposition is held. It names practically every tourist attraction from San Diego to Seattle.

In addition to Mr. Balcomb's lecture, the regular program of motion pictures will be given. One of the films is devoted to California, showing many familiar scenes, such as cutting the giant redwood trees, scenes in the principal cities and on the beaches.

Mr. Balcomb will deliver his California lectures at the various hotels in the Pikes Peak region during the next two weeks.

CHEFS AT ZOO WILL FEED AN ARMY OF 3,000 TODAY

Barbecue at Dorcher Park This Afternoon Is Expected to Attract Great Crowd

Two or three thousand visitors are expected at Zoo park today, when the grand annual free barbecue given by Alderman John J. Coughlin will be held, with the officers and delegates to the Woodmen of the World convention and their friends his special guests. Coughlin was initiated into the mysteries of the order Friday night, his own goat being used for the ceremony, and he decided that a barbecue in honor of his new title seemed would be appropriate.

Consequently, he has secured a large share of the fresh beef, pork and mutton to be had in the city, as well as 20 sacks of potatoes, 2000 loaves of bread and three barrels of pickles, and with the roasting of the meat in charge of an expert barbecue chef, Marshal La Dert, and a couple of competent assistants, it will be served in the most appetizing form, magnificent steaming and juicy, fresh from the big grates on which it will be cooked in the open air.

Each visitor to the park will be served on a plate, and everything has been placed in shape to handle the throng, so that all will be suitably served.

The day promises to be by far the biggest of the year at the Zoo, and in addition to the barbecue there will be the baseball game at 2:15 between the Zoos and the Tuileries team of Denver, who beat the locals in June, swimming contests in the popular open-air hot and cold pools, and other entertainment. In the morning at 10 o'clock the carpenters and painters will play a benefit game for the Union Labor league, the receipts going toward the league's expenses, and the majority of the spectators will remain for the day.

THE REASON WHY WHITE OWNERS DON'T SELL

It may be that you have already bought an automobile before this time, so that my advice may be too late to be considered by you.

In any event I shall tell you what I think will give you the best satisfaction in a car. My son sells other cars, but the "White" gas car is the one that he considers the best.

The price is higher than some cars that weigh more and that take up more space, but the "White" is in a class by itself when it comes to durability, economy and general satisfaction.

The car that I have used the past two years has covered 20,000 miles and the engine and working parts seem to be in just as good shape as when new, and have required no attention. It has been easy on tires, and the amount of gasoline and oil used is very much less than most cars of the same weight.

The "White" car handles very easily and is an ideal car to operate safely and with pleasure in cities; the engine never stalls and it can be run at any speed, either slow or fast, without irritation to the driver.

And on country roads it will go anywhere that a car can go. It is not as powerful in climbing hills at fast speed as some cars, but it is not planned that way. It will go as fast as anyone should care to go and there is no hill that it will not climb and no mud that it will not go through better than any other car I have ever seen operate. The engine never heats and in all the driving I have done with my car I have always gone to the end of the road as planned and home again without delay or assistance, no matter what the condition of the road. And I have made a great many trips of more than 300 miles in a day, the longest being 413 in one day without delay except slowing down through the mud. And I have been through and over all kinds of roads in all kinds of conditions.

There is another thing that I will mention: I have noticed there are no second-hand White gas cars for sale. In my case I have had offers to sell my car, after it had more than paid for itself in use, for a few hundred dollars less than it cost when new. I do not sell for it is just as serviceable for my use as when new. It keeps right on running with no trouble, and about all it needs is a new coat of paint. I would not trade it for a new car of many makes costing more money, as I have no worry. It will continue to run many years and I am sure that some new cars never do that well. (Signed) A. T. Bennett, President the Bennett Loan & Trust company, Sioux City, Ia.

PRIZES AT NEXT FLOWER SHOW FOR 'BEST BABIES'

Entries Must Be Sent to Secretary of Horticultural Society by August 7

A "Better Baby" contest will be a feature this year in connection with the annual flower show of the Horticultural society. The "Better Baby" movement, inaugurated by philanthropists and charitable institutions of New York, and continued by various branches of a national society, has been strongly indorsed all over the country by prominent physicians, leading magazines, some of which have made a permanent feature of "Better Baby" pages, mothers' clubs and all individual societies that have the welfare of the children and race at heart.

The babies are judged entirely on a basis of physical and mental perfection by a standard set by the national society. Thursday, August 14, a committee of physicians and nurses of Colorado Springs will act as judges of the first "Better Baby" contest, and will announce their decisions the following day. Mothers who desire their children in the contest must obtain blanks from F. F. Horn, secretary of the Horticultural society, fill them out and return them by Thursday of this week.

Dog Decision Brings Praise to Dunnington

Justice O. R. Dunnington has been indorsed for the supreme court because he recently ruled that a puppy dog was not such a nuisance as to give grounds for the revocation of a lease. C. J. Annis of Denver wrote him as follows:

"According to the papers, you have recently rendered an admirable decision in that 'dog case' on behalf of myself and three other dog owners and dog lovers in this building (The Roanoke). W. H. LAUCK, COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT, MAKES REPORT OF WORK ACCOMPLISHED SINCE HE ASSUMED OFFICE LAST OCTOBER

Farm Management, Field Service and Demonstration Carried on in El Paso County

(This is the fifth of a series of articles applied on dry farming during the last 18 months.)

By W. H. LAUCK.

The work was started in El Paso county October 13, 1912, the cooperators being the State Agricultural college of Colorado, the office of farm management of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, board of county commissioners of El Paso county and the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce.

The writer began work by making arrangements for office room and furniture and talking the matter of the work over with the county commissioners and members of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce. He also purchased a second-hand automobile to use in the work.

The sum and substance of the memorandum of understanding was that there was to be a budget of $2,600, and the county commissioners were to pay $1,300 out of their advertising fund and the office of farm management, through its field service and demonstration work, to pay $1,200 on salary, $62.50 on traveling expenses and furnish the franking privilege and stationery.

During the month of November the writer was making a preliminary survey of sections of this county and arranging for a series of farmers' institutes at 16 different points in the county. These meetings were held from December 2 to 12, inclusive. The weather was very severe, the attendances were not large, but the interest was good and served as a medium for the county agent to get acquainted with some of the most progressive farmers, who have moved in the county. The subjects discussed were dairying, by Prof. G. E. Morton, head of the animal husbandry department of the Colorado Agricultural college; poultry raising, by Prof. W. E. Vapion, poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural college; windmill irrigation and dry farming subjects, by the county agent of El Paso county. The total attendance at the 16 meetings was 470, miles traveled by auto, 328. We ate one meal at a country store and paid one farmer for board and lodging.

The rest of the month of December was spent in making the preliminary survey, encouraging the construction of silos, the forming of farmers' clubs for the social, educational, moral and financial benefits they derive from them.

During the first 25 days of January the writer attended the conference of all the men on the farm management force at Washington, D. C. This conference and the lectures and talks delivered there were invaluable to the men who had just started work in the farm management office, and especially the county men. These meetings, where we hear "big things" from our "big men" in the service, will not be soon forgotten.

Preliminary Work Necessary.

The latter part of January and all of February were spent in planning the work of the coming season, in looking after important matters which interest the farmers, such as markets, pure seeds for planting, better seed potatoes, planning crop rotations for the different sections and looking into the agricultural problems of the Fountain valley, which is the only irrigated section in the county. Two rousing meetings were held in the town of Fountain, which is centrally located in the valley. In this valley is work enough for one man constantly. The meetings were followed up by practical work in pruning trees in the fruit orchards and talking to the farmers in the meantime of general farm topics, crop rotations, beet culture, reseeding alfalfa, dairying, silo construction, marketing, etc. There is need of a better system of leasing of some of the farms so that better crop rotations can be practiced by the tenants. The writer hopes to do much educational work in this valley the coming fall and winter, leading up to a better system of farming for next season.

On February 25, the Colorado Agricultural college, through its extension department, visited Colorado Springs and Fountain with a demonstration train and corps of speakers with exhibits, model cement silos, feeding racks, charts of feeding rations, practical poultry appliances, a domestic science display and excellent display of alfalfa plants, seed, forage, and photographs of standing fields, individual plants, etc. There were also veterinary and rural school departments, besides two lecture cars, into which time interested in the several subjects were invited to go in to the lectures. It was estimated that 2,000 people passed through the train in Colorado Springs and 1,500 at Fountain, and well as the city and [illegible] were [illegible]

[illegible] Colorado Springs and Fountain with the train of exhibits, which can profitably be taken up at a special time. I made a short talk before the 40 Party Vocational Partners association on the aims and importance of the girls' and boys' clubs, urging the teachers to take up this important work.

During the month I also assisted in organizing two farmers' clubs. These have held regular meetings ever since, [illegible] a noticeable increase of interest in better farming methods, better seed stock of potatoes and all grains, better bred livestock, community social interest, better methods of caring for the feeds grown in the sections and in securing better market facilities and markets, since these clubs have been organized. The writer has been able to meet the people collectively and assist them with simply hints on farming that he could not have done to meet them individually, and also has been able to secure speakers such as our district judge, Prof. D. W. Working, and state leader of Colorado, Prof. D. W. Working, to address the farmers and to go in new ideas from other sections of the state or states, to inspire them.

During the month of April, one more farmers' club was organized, which has continued with ever increasing interest on the part of the farmers. Some of the month was spent investigating the growing of small fruit and vegetables in and around Colorado Springs. It seems probable that growing strawberries for the market could be very profitably followed by the market gardeners. The field studies on this subject were followed by a meeting of those interested, and a very instructive meeting resulted.

Here and since this time will be devoted to the fall and winter as to the preparation of the soil and the care of the plants for the crop. Next spring a campaign will be conducted to encourage a larger acreage being planted.

Men Faith of Farmers.

During May two farmers' clubs were organized which are doing well. One thing especially was accomplished at one of these club meetings. The section had had very little spring rains and the crops were rolling up every day. The farmers were very much discouraged. The writer talked on the importance of keeping the cultivators going and keeping the soil stirred, encouraging them to do their part, at least, for they would be more contented when at work. The following Sunday an excellent rain fell and saved all the crops where the farmers had kept the cultivators going and hoed out the weeds. The farmers are now the strongest adherents to the cause and are showing a desire to carry on more work for the good of better farming methods and conditions. Other clubs will soon be organized in different sections. It will be only a question of a short time when the county will be dotted with these farmers' clubs because of the advertising the members of the present clubs are giving.

During the months of May and June, the writer assisted in planting alfalfa and sweet clover, furnishing culture for inoculation from the bureau of plant industry to all to try out on a portion of the fields. A little experiment seed drill has been busy most of the time all the spring, being loaned to farmers planting legumes. I am now starting a vigorous campaign on the planting of hairy vetch with their fall rye and wheat for pasture this fall and for hay next spring, and besides this introducing a legume into the crop rotation which is greatly needed. Some of these fields will be plowed up next spring for potatoes and corn. Alfalfa in rows for cultivation is being tried out very extensively.

The farmers' club meetings the latter part of June were devoted to carrying subjects leading up to a series of field day meetings, when a pit silo will be started on the farm of one of the most progressive farmers in each of the localities. The object of these meetings is two-fold. To stimulate among the farmers the use of the silo in keeping feed and increasing their dairy profits, and also to get the people of the towns and cities interested in the farmers so they may understand the conditions. This will have its influence towards securing help for the farmers at a reasonable rate of interest so they may improve their farms and homesteads and buy some of the live stock of any kind so as to make the farmer a producer instead of his just making a living. Dairying is our leader in El Paso county, and it is the ambition of the county agent to work all other farm enterprises center in this leader that we may have better agriculture in El Paso county.

DENVER CATHOLICS SPLIT OVER SUIT

Bishop Matz Gets Injunction Preventing Disbursal of Trust Fund

DENVER, Aug. 2.—An injunction preventing directors of the Colorado Catholic Loan and Trust Association from disposing of any of the association's property without Pope's orders from the court was granted by Judge R. E. Lewis of the United States district court today. The injunction petition was sought by Bishop Nicholas C. Matz, against whom, as chairman of the association, Leo Mayhew, is seeking to recover $[illegible] which he declared was a legacy [illegible] from an uncle, Bishop Joseph P. Machebeuf.

In the course of the hearing on the petition, charges and counter charges of unfair business dealings were made. Rev. J. P. Carrigan declared that his name had been forged as secretary to minutes of the association's meeting which he did not attend. The suit has gained much prominence in Catholic circles in Denver and it is stated that Denver Catholicism has been split because of it.

U. S. MAY ABANDON NICARAGUAN TREATY

Protectorate Feature Meets with Disapproval of Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The proposed protectorate for Nicaragua embraced in a treaty suggested by Secretary Bryan, probably will be abandoned because of adverse action by the senate foreign relations committee. Chairman Lodge [illegible] voted to ask Secretary Bryan to transmit a new Nicaraguan treaty limited strictly to the proposed $3,000,000 purchase of the canal route and naval base concessions.

The limit without the proposed protectorate in the committee by a vote of [illegible] decided it would be [illegible] to attempt a settlement of Latin affairs at the present time. It was [illegible] to add to Secretary Bryan's treaty features which [illegible] to those it [illegible] by the house committee [illegible] that the [illegible] instructed to [illegible] the United States [illegible] and exclusive right to build a canal across Nicaragua. A 99 year lease of a naval base site on the Pacific bay and a 99 year lease on Corn Island in the Caribbean sea. The payment by the United States to Nicaragua of $3,000,000 in return for these concessions.

These terms are practically identical with those of the treaty as originally proposed by Secretary Bryan before he decided to add the amendment by which an American protectorate would have been established. The senate committee did not definitely settle the question of future protectorates in Central America, however. It is understood the administration is willing to withdraw the amendment for the present in order to secure an early ratification of the Nicaraguan compact.

Strong opposition was aired in the committee today by Senators Smith, Clarke of Arkansas, Williams and others who were opposed to any action by the United States toward the exercise of sovereign authority in the Central American countries.

Other senators of the committee defended the policy with equal vigor.

OWEN EXPLAINS BILL TO COUNTRY BANKERS

Will Relieve Them From Control of Few Persons, He Declares

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—In a circular letter to country bankers, issued today, chairman Owen of the senate banking committee enumerated what he considered to be the advantages to them of the Glass-Owen currency bill and stated that it would relieve the banking business from the control of a half-dozen "very ambitious gentlemen who could today shake this country to its foundation by panics whenever they pleased."

"If an exhaustive investigation were made of the panic of 1907 to ascertain who were the beneficiaries of that panic, this country would learn a much needed lesson in finance," said he.

After an array of figures, Senator Owen reached the conclusion in his letter that the net result to the average $100,000 bank would be a gain over the present system of approximately $3,000 a year, or three per cent on its capital.

"I would be in favor of giving them other advantages which we can do more intelligently when we codify the national bank act next winter."

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES TO MEET IN ST. PAUL

Prominent Church Dignitaries Will Be in Attendance August 10 to 12

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Anthony Matre, national secretary of the American Federation of Catholic societies, today gave out the program for the twelfth national convention of the federation which is to be held in Milwaukee, August 10-14.

The convention will be attended by delegations from the leading Catholic societies of the country, a total membership of 2,000,000 being represented.

During the convention a national Catholic league for women will be organized, and steps will be taken for the organization of an international Catholic federation, in which the federations of Ireland, Germany, France, Italy, Austria, Belgium, Canada and South America will be represented.

The convention will open with a solemn pontifical high mass, celebrated by [illegible] archbishop of St. Louis. At the [illegible] day of the convention [illegible] will be [illegible] by Mgr. [illegible] of New York.

COUNTRY BANKS TO GET SHARE FUNDS

Treasury Department Will Be Patient so Farmers Can Move Crops

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The $50,000,000 deposit of government funds about to be made will be placed in the banks of the large cities in the agricultural regions of the south and west on the condition and expectation, treasury officials said today, that these large banks will distribute the money to the country banks at reasonable rates of interest. While the treasury department will not attempt to fix the rate of interest, it will insist on equitable treatment, so that the money will be available for the marketing and movement of crops at reasonable rates.

Large deposits will be made in Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans and Atlanta, Ga.

While the treasury department will stipulate that the money must be returned after the crops have been moved and will fix dates for its gradual flow back to the government, the conditions, it is said, will not be hard and fast and will be changed if unforeseen circumstances indicate that the banks should have more time to make the repayments.

PUEBLO TEAMSTERS STILL ON STRIKE

PUEBLO, Aug. 2.—Although a tentative agreement was reached by the striking teamsters and building trades unionists by which it was hoped the men would return to work Monday morning, no final contract has been signed and some venture the opinion that the breach is still as wide as ever and that the prospects are for a prolonged struggle.

The basis by which it was hoped to reach an agreement included concessions by both sides. The union then agreed to receive their demands of $2.50 for a 10-hour day while the employers were to be permitted to continue their business on the "open shop" plan.

GERMAN ARMY SCANDAL INVOLVES KRUPP OFFICIAL

Director Denies Company Profited by Secret Information Furnished by Berlin Agent

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—A director of the Krupp Ordnance Works, who himself may face a civil court investigation, was a witness when the court-martial of the military officers charged with accepting bribes for information of pending government contracts for guns and ammunition was resumed today.

The Krupp director denied that his firm had received any information from Max Brandt, former Berlin agent of the company, which could not have been obtained from other sources. Brandt yesterday testified that he had received extra remuneration from his employers for expense entailed in entertaining the accused officers.

The directors declared that the Krupps never increased prices as the result of Brandt's secret reports, and never lowered them unless it was apparent that the first figures were based upon miscalculation.

A high employe of the Krupp factory also gave testimony minimizing the value of the Brandt reports.

It was brought out during the day that three of the defendants had visited Brandt at his home following his release from jail. Yesterday the officers denied that they had been in communication with Brandt since the arrests on the bribery charges were made.

MEN STILL OUT ON ACCOUNT ACCIDENT

Demand Railroads Shall Improve the Working Conditions

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 2.—The employes of the Great Northern Ore dock have not yet returned to work since they walked out following the wreck in which two of their men were killed and five injured as the result of a train collision on one of the docks Thursday night. The men have presented demands to the railroad officials as follows:

"First that the working conditions on the docks be made safer by installing safety appliances and placing covers on the ore bins when not in use.

"Second that the men be allowed to appoint one of their number to regulate the switching of trains on the docks.

"Third that objectionable foremen and checkers be discharged and that new foremen be not appointed unless approved by the men."

The railroad company today agreed to the demands for safer working conditions, but refused to consider the last two demands.

NATIONAL W. O. W. ENCAMPMENT ENDS

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The national encampment, Woodmen of the World, ended today with awards in the prize drill contests. Dress parade was held at 9 a. m., after which all companies gathered on the parade grounds and were addressed by General Root and complimented for excellent military conduct by Adjt. Gen. John T. Yates.

Major General Yates and Col. George Mather then announced the following as the successful western competitors in the various drill contests:

Field drill, Class A—Third prize, Company L, Fifty-second regiment, Little Rock, Ark., and Company G, Seventh regiment, Houston, Tex.

Field drill, Class B, Second prize, Company H, Third regiment, Fort Worth, Tex.

ENGLAND EXPLAINS FAILURE TO TAKE PART IN EXPOSITION

LONDON, Aug. 2.—An apparently inspired statement in regard to the British government's nonparticipation in the Panama-Pacific exposition in San Francisco appears today in the Westminster Gazette, drawn forth by the caustic comment cabled from America. It earnestly avers that Great Britain's refusal to participate has no domestic significance and is based purely on commercial grounds. The newspaper says:

"We do not mix up our diplomatic negotiations and our business in the way suggested.

"Americans may be easy in their minds that our refusal on this occasion has no other reasons behind it than those of expense and the impossibility of getting together a worthy collection at a place so distant as San Francisco.

"We hope and expect that any diplomatic differences we have with the American government about the Panama canal will be settled long before 1915, when the exposition is to be held."

The Pall Mall Gazette says there was no occasion for an "explosion of temper" by Americans after the explanation given by the British board of trade yesterday, and continues:

"We must confess we learned of the reluctance of our traders with some regret. At first sight it betokens lack of imagination and enterprise."

The newspaper suggests that the exhibition might give British traders a chance to make leeway on the German "drummers" who are already busy on the coast.

"No educational movement in modern times has had more vital relations to the children, to the homes they represent, and to the nation, than medical supervision of school children and the general hygienic movement it typifies," says Philander P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, in a bulletin on medical inspection in schools, recently issued by the federal bureau of education. In this work, Dr. Claxton points out that, although the medical inspection system in schools found root in this country but 10 years ago, it has been established so firmly as to have become one of the salient factors of any educational institution. In nearly every school in the country the pupils are subjects to medical inspection, especially as to eyes, ears, throat, teeth and similar organs. The quarantine system has been developed mainly with respect to contagious diseases among children who are public school pupils.

CALENDA AGAIN IS IN TOILS OF LAW

Noted Italian Brigand on Trial for Murder—In Same Cell as Sentenced in 1868

MILAN, Aug. 2.—Calenda, the notorious Calabrian brigand, is again on trial at Catanzaro assizes in the same grim iron cage in which, in the year 1868, he heard his condemnation to 30 years' hard labor for several murders. Hardly had he shaken off his shackles than he was hauled before the Montalbano assize court to expiate an outrageous crime for which he served five years in Italian convict settlement.

Calenda then expressed his intention of settling down quietly. This he did until 1905, when he heard that a young fellow named Macri had made a boast concerning Calenda's beautiful niece. Mad with rage, Calenda waylaid him with a gun. The shot missed, but a few nights later Macri was found pierced through the heart.

The brigand disappeared, and in his absence he was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment. A few days later a shepherd stumbled across a couple of bodies on the mountain where Calenda was known to be in hiding. The two murdered men had given evidence against him. They had been shot in the back by bullets of a pattern that Calenda was carrying. The judicial authorities increased the penalty to one of lifelong imprisonment, and carabinieri were dispatched to scour the mountain fastnesses in hopes of capturing him.

Meantime Calenda, furnished with a false passport, was on his way to New York. No more was heard of him till 1911 when an Italian detective, dropping into a Brooklyn pharmacy, recognized the ex-brigand in the druggist's assistant. Hence his expulsion from the United States and his reappearance to answer for two murders and two other attempts at murder. This is the fourth time that the court has been occupied in judging his blood deeds.

alone weighs nearly 30 pounds, not to mention the screw and frame which works them, and the heavy box in which the whole is carried. Nearly two pounds of wax are required for each impression cast by the seal. The seal is issued on board of a British man-of-war, leaving England on Wednesday in 1911, via Lake Lebanon, a five [illegible] voyage in Canada. [illegible]

Scene Is Too Real; Actress in Hospital

[illegible]

Mr. Ingalls was playing the part of a bad actor who takes away a poor girl's lover. The actual plot of the play is that the poor girl attacks her with a knife [illegible] with cotton wool, and takes his death wound with it.

At a recent performance Miss Mistinguett fell to the ground, fainting, and the other actors applauded her wildly. It was only when she was seen to be bleeding and unconscious that it was realized that the cotton wool on the knife had been forgotten.

Hypnotized Women to Cut Off Their Hair

PARIS, Aug. 2.—There was a surprising sequel to a charge of theft preferred against two women by a wealthy engineer named Lermagourg. The police commissioner noticed that the hair of both women was cut short and in a peculiar manner. When questioned they declared that Lermagourg had hypnotized them and then cut off their hair. At Lermagourg's residence the police found locks of hair shorn from 94 women, which a wig maker estimated to be worth $600. It was also discovered that his shaving brushes were made of women's hair. Lermagourg has been arrested.

French Are So Patriotic They Defy Earthquakes

PARIS, Aug. 2.—It seems that patriotism has reached such a high pitch in France that the officers of the government stand ready to drive back an invading earthquake if ordered to do so.

When a slight earthquake shock was recently felt in some of the French provinces the subprefect of one department, an important government official, telegraphed to the minister of the interior as follows: "On the first intimation of the seismic tremors I summoned the government attorney, the lieutenant of gendarmerie and the police magistrate. I have assumed my uniforms and now await your orders."

VEGETABLE HAIR ORNAMENTS

From the London Chronicle.

Now that fruit and flowers are in the shape of little oranges for the bride's coiffure, will it come to vegetables again, as it did among the absurdities of Marie Antoinette's time? "Ask my niece, Mme. de Matignon," we read in the memoirs of the Marquise de Crequy, "if it is not true that in 1785 she had her head dressed a la jardiniere, with a red check duster, into which M. Leonard (the queen's hair dresser) had artistically inserted a small artichoke, a broccoli, a fine carrot and some radishes. When Dondon Picot (the Comtesse de Jameth-Picot, a rich creole) saw it she was so delighted that she exclaimed: 'I will never wear anything but vegetables. It is so simple, and more natural than flowers.'"

BLUE AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Hamilton Tells How She Finally Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Warren, Ind.—"I was bothered terribly with female weakness. I had [illegible] and was irregular, [illegible] I had bearing down pains and my back ached the biggest part of the time. I felt blue and had weak feelings. When I would stoop over, it hurt me to walk any distance. I felt blue and discouraged.

"I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now in good health. If it had not been for that medicine I would have been in my grave a long time ago."—Mrs. ARTIE E. HAMILTON, R.F.D. No. 6, Warren, Ind.

Another Case

Esmond, R. I.—"I write to tell you how much good your medicine has done me and to let other women know that there is help for them. I suffered with bearing down pains, headache, was irregular and felt blue and depressed all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to gain in a short time and I am a well woman today. I am on my feet from early morning until late at night running a boarding house and do all my own work. I hope that many suffering women will try your medicine. It makes happier wives and mothers."—Mrs. ANNA HANSEN, R. No. 2, Box 1.

THE QUESTION OF METERS

TO METER or not to meter—that is the question. Whether it is better to permit everybody in town to waste water by letting it run all night in winter to prevent the pipes freezing, and all day and all night in summer to soak the lawn, or to take arms against this sea of wasted water and by installing meters end it. That's what the Council is up against.

Mayor McKesson, as spokesman for the meterites, contends that the present system is wasteful and inefficient. Our reservoirs are constantly depleted by the reckless misuse of water, resulting in the necessity of rigorous measures every summer to prevent a shortage. Five years ago a shortage did occur, with serious consequences, and often the supply has been so small that lawns have withered.

In cold winter weather the volume of water discharged at the outlet of the main reservoir during the night and early morning is greater than in summer, which shows conclusively the extent to which people leave faucets open to prevent freezing of pipes. In summer water is wasted by the millions of gallons daily by people who cherish the delightful illusion that water is an inexhaustible asset. The Mayor contends that it is unfair to all metered consumers that such delinquents will pay only for what they use, and not take their proportionate share of the waste, loss and cost for it is what it amounts to in the long run.

Councilman Frost, speaking for the anti-meterites, is against meters on "general principles," and besides, he thinks it would cost too much to install them.

It is a fact, we believe, that Colorado Springs uses more water per capita than any other city in the country. The Mayor says that during the hot spell early last month we used 400 gallons a day for every one of an estimated 30,000 population. He contrasts this with the meter reading of a large boarding house which used only sixty-three gallons a day, "including sprinkling." We wonder whether anybody in that boarding house took a bath during the hot wave, and how many drops of water each square foot of the lawn was able to coax from the vigilant meter.

All this is an important matter and the people ought to think of it seriously. But before they can reach definite conclusions they will require considerably more information than they have now. The item that concerns them most is, naturally, that of cost. What will be the expense of installing a meter, and what will be the annual cost of water, as regulated by it, for an average four or six or eight-room dwelling? These are some of the things the people want to know, and it might be well for Mayor McKesson, who has investigated the subject carefully, to tell them.

LIMITS OF JOURNALISM

The newspapers and muck-raking magazines are responsible for the awakened public conscience of today. Isolated agitators and political radicals would have been submerged by a relentless opposition on the one hand and a hopeless indifference on the other. Only as the newspapers and magazines took up the cry and made it echo, like Gabriel's mighty horn throughout the land, did the people seem to shake off the stupor of political sedatives and downright ignorance of actual conditions.

The limits of journalism have been reached. The great republic is awake with the tocsin of reform making war music in its ears. But the ranks are disorganized; groups are forming here and there, and little unity or cooperation has developed. The Progressive party was only the rallying of the volunteers and minute men to repulse an enemy, of whose existence they were unaware or unconscious, almost to the hour of doing battle.

What is needed now is that the minute men and all the vast crowd of earnest but confused sympathizers shall be organized into an army, standing shoulder to shoulder, with a common ground to meet on, a common purpose to battle for, and a common cause to inspire them. This cannot be accomplished by newspaper appeals; in fact newspaper propaganda may easily defeat its own ends if it fails to produce results.

For this reason the efforts of Miss Alice Carpenter to educate and organize the progressive sentiment in Colorado Springs, are of first importance. Organization alone will make a victory possible. It is not enough that the individual shall hear and understand. Only as men get together in meetings and committees to give expression to their position and exchange views will this movement be put on a permanent basis.

This has always been so. The disorganized forces of righteousness, numerically strongest, have again and again been defeated by an opposition that kept itself in fighting trim. The success of the Republican party has been due to a perfectly geared organization far more than to any principles they advocated.

Journalism has done its part; it has sowed the seed. Only organization can reap the harvest.

ANOTHER AIRING

THE lobby investigation in Congress has not been an altogether enjoyable diversion, either for the members or the public. But it is better to dig out corruption than to cover it up and let it lie, even though the task is disagreeable. Now that Congressman Mahn, author of the White Slave Act, has succeeded in his fight for a free discussion of the unsavory Caminetti case we are to have another unpleasant airing, but the circumstances are such that the scandal cannot be suppressed.

For a scandal it is, and nothing less. It involves high officials of the Government, from the President down through his Cabinet to several hitherto obscure individuals, now very much in the public eye. The President, to save the face of his Attorney General, McReynolds, exonerated him while admitting his improper conduct. At the same time he accepted the resignation of District Attorney McNab while admitting that he had conducted the case properly. Finally, there is the circumstance of Commissioner General Caminetti exerting his personal and political influence to have his son's trial postponed.

It is an unpleasant situation for the Administration, but it ought to be investigated thoroughly for the wife and separately, too, it will be.

RUSSIA AND THE BAPTISTS

ACCORDING to a St. Petersburg dispatch the Russian Ministry of the Interior has sanctioned a proclamation denouncing the Baptists as "a sect especially harmful to the state," and therefore not possessing the right of freedom of worship. This is done because Baptists refuse to take the military oath.

It is really quite an honor to be officially expelled from Russia, or to be denied some such fundamental right as that of freedom of worship, or eating, or sleeping, or breathing the same air as "The Lord's Anointed," the somewhat grandiloquent title by which the Czar is known to himself. It argues that the individuals thus stigmatized are possessed of a little more intelligence and independence of spirit than the common herd. But it also helps explain why most of the people who can emigrate from Russia get out without unnecessary delay.

THE STATUE HABIT.

From the New York Evening Post.

News came the other day of a proposal in Kansas to have the statue of Senator Ingalls withdrawn from the Hall of Statuary at Washington. It sprang not from any who denied his merits, but from those who were anxious to keep his fame green. They objected that his inclusion in the hall had done him anything but honor, and that he only shared there the ridicule that many visitors shower upon the figures in the American Pantheon. And they argued that a reputation in need of no statue had only been lowered by giving it a memorial so common as to have lost all distinction. The suggestion of this incident lies not so much in criticism of the incongruities and artistic deficiencies of the collection in the Capitol as in a general reflection upon the whole cheapening practice of Americans—and others—of hastily setting up permanent tributes to any man for whom a community feels a temporary enthusiasm. The impulse is an hospitable one, but posterity is long standing, and it is a wholesome reaction that makes people certain of a great name reluctant to range it with those to whom immortality has been prematurely decreed.

THE SCAPEGOAT.

From Collier's.

We are sorry for Mellen. He is not a man so much touched with guilt as victim and sacrifice. He was not a principal, but an agent. It wasn't he who conceived the dream, nor he who made the millions out of it. Railroad presidents are pawns; when they get "in bad" in Montana and Oregon they are transferred to New England; when their unpopularity becomes nation wide they are pensioned off. Wall street is the place where the deeds are conceived, the pawns moved, the millions caained. Some one man conceived all that the New Haven has done. Isn't the public intelligence great enough to identify that same one man and make money out of it for himself and his associates. It is like other similar exploitations, the same group are now making money out of the New Haven's troubles by selling the stock short. Later on, when the high finance kidders have become discouraged or unable longer to hold on, the same group will make more money by buying the stock in cheap and reorganizing the road. Some day public intelligence and capacity for cooperation will be great enough to stop all this.

Explains Feats of Girl Psychic

Scientist Says Beulah Miller Reads Mind by Aid of "Unconscious Signs"

From the Metropolitan Magazine.

Prof. Hugo Munsterberg, the Harvard scientist, who exposed the claims of Mme. Palladino a few years ago, has published the results of his investigation of the case of Beulah Miller, the 16-year-old girl of Warren, Rhode Island, whose mind-reading performances have recently amazed the whole world. He declares that while there is no intentional fraud in the case, the girl is not, properly speaking, a mind reader, but that she obtains her results by means of "unconscious signs" made by those about her, particularly her mother and sister.

Professor Munsterberg admits that at first he was staggered by the child's powers, and declares that her performances in naming cards and words she could not possibly see were fully as wonderful as had been reported. Describing his experiments, he says:

"I drew cards which she could not possibly see, while they were shown to the mother and sister sitting next to me, Beulah sitting on the other side of the room. The first was the nine of hearts; she said nine of hearts. The next was six of clubs, to which she said at first six of spades; when told it was clubs she added six clubs. The next was two of diamonds; her first figure was four; when told that it was wrong, she corrected herself to two, and added diamonds. The next was the nine of clubs, which she gave correctly; seven of spades she called at first seven of diamonds, then spades; jack of spades she gave correctly at once, and so on. One stage further. We had little cardboard squares, on each of which was a single large letter. I drew any three, put them into the cover of a box, and while the lids Gladys and I were looking at the three letters, Beulah, sitting beside us, looked at the ceiling. The first was R-T-O. She said R-T-I. When told that it was wrong, she added O. The next were S-U-T; she gave S-U, and then wrongly R-P-O, and finally U. The next were N-A-R; she gave G-N-A-R-R. The following D-W-O, she gave D-W. [illegible] This was [illegible] Among all that of five cards she gave three correctly, two half correctly, and those two mistakes were [illegible] after the first wrong guess. The second experiment demanded from her four times three letters. Of these 12 letters six were right at the first glance, five after one or two wrong trials. And each of the rest was an intentional. Once she gave six cards to [illegible] correctly."

He reveals [illegible] two facts that I saw a [illegible] of light on the mystery. Here [illegible] he says:

"When Beulah is [illegible]

We are choosing styles that appeal to women of refinement and we want you to see them.

Priced from $16 to $37.50.

COATS:

—For so early in the season we have a nice line of Fall Coats. We have chosen these now with the idea of putting them right on and wearing them for evenings and the cooler days—yet that can also be worn all Fall and Winter. The most fashionable coats are the three-quarter lengths—and as expected the heavier rough fabrics are again favored. The weaves of course are many of them new.

—We want every woman to watch our Garment Selections until you see just the thing you want—it's coming!

EDUCATING "EXCEPTIONAL" CHILDREN

"It is often the exceptionally bright child, even the genius, who we find on the wrong side," says Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, discussing the education of exceptional children in the annual report of the United States Commissioner of Education, just issued. "The stupid and weak-minded criminal is not as dangerous as the clever and intellectual criminal."

Dr. Groszmann urges that public attention be directed to all types of exceptional children, not merely to the feeble-minded and degenerate, who no matter how undesirable a factor they may be in society are by no means the whole problem. He points out that the problem of the exceptional child is by no means merely the problem of the defective or the "subnormal" or the abnormal child. Often it is a case of misdirected ability or the part of a gifted mind. The problem of child growth and development as affecting criminal tendencies. Sometimes it is vocational failure due to improper vocational education or it may be a problem arising from racial differences, together with the difficulties of social adjustment in a nation which has grown through immigration.

FUSION CANDIDATE MAY NOT GET SUPPORT OF ALL THE PARTIES

Republican Organization of New York City Said to Be Disappointed That Whitman Wasn't Named

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—As an aftermath of yesterday's action of the fusion committee in agreeing to put forward John Purroy Mitchel as the anti-Tammany candidate for mayor, there arose today the question as to whether all three political divisions—Republican, Progressive and Independent Democratic—represented in the committee—would stand by the action taken. Although the decision of the committee is regarded, as a virtual nomination in behalf of the three divisions it is actually only a recommendation to the political organizations who contributed to the membership and the actual choice must naturally be made by those organizations.

The most talked-of danger of a split in the fusion forces is the possibility of a Republican bolt in favor of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman as a regular Republican candidate for mayor. The Republican leaders make no secret of their disappointment over the nomination of Mitchel, with Whitman running so close in the voting among the committee members that it was practically by one man's choice that the nomination was swung to the collector of the port instead of to the district attorney.

A majority of the New York papers express a belief that notwithstanding the bitterness felt by the Republicans they will not venture upon the talked-of independent nomination. The question whether Mr. Whitman will stand on the ticket as Mitchel as candidate as reelection as district attorney and what [illegible] President George McAneny [illegible] mind as the nominee for president of the board of aldermen as the [illegible] ticket was still an open question today. Neither had defined his attitude.

[illegible] 10 IT'S AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—[illegible] Secretary Bryan [illegible] vigorously [illegible] that his request to congress to appropriate $[illegible] for bringing refugees out of Mexico had any connection with any policy the administration may adopt in dealing with the Mexican situation.

Strictents attempting to put a [illegible] construction on the request for an appropriation are told [illegible] without [illegible] cannot be expected on any theory consistent with an interest in the public welfare," said he. "[illegible] aid to any [illegible] willing to leave Mexico this government is simply doing what it does at any time when American citizens are in danger by insurrection and there is no reason why anybody should attempt to misconstrue it."

Secretary Bryan's request, [illegible] easily interpreted as one step in the administration's plan for dealing with the Mexican problem.

Far from being regarded as a preliminary to intervention which President Wilson has told friends on various occasions is out of the question—the request for funds is really thought to be the forerunner of a policy of noninterference.

The young woman told the police that a man whom she did not see distinctly, threw stones at her and Donaldson as they approached the entrance to the park.

CASTRO REVOLUTION PUZZLES THIS COUNTRY

Exiled President of Venezuela Issues Proclamation in Which He Tells of Abuses at Present

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The sudden and unexpected appearance in Venezuela of General C. Castro to take personal command of the revolutionary forces confronts the state department with a grave problem. Secretary Bryan decline today to say what would be the attitude of the United States toward the presence of the unwelcome exile in the land from which he was banished five years ago.

The Taft administration not only approved of Castro's exile from Venezuela but sought by every means, although without success, to prevent him from landing in this country last winter. Officials realize that Castro's personal direction of the insurrection will make the movement far more formidable.

The cruiser Des Moines will leave Brunswick, Ga., Monday for La Guaira expecting to reach that port Friday.

Henry F. Tennant of the state department, who is going to Caracas to take charge of the legation pending the appointment of a new minister will leave Washington tonight and will proceed to Venezuela on the Des Moines.

Troops Mobilized

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 2.—The mobilization of the Venezuela troops in Caracas was completed today and an expedition is expected to leave the capital at any moment to meet the revolutionary invaders. It is believed the first objective point of the government troops will be the state of Falcon, of which Coro, the capital, was reported to have fallen into the hands of General Castro's adherents a few days ago. The government troops are well organized and thoroughly equipped for any service.

In a proclamation dated Coro, July 27, Castro says in part:

"War has been inevitable. I declare myself in a campaign against Juan Vicente Gomez, whose treason and usurpation of power since 1908 have become a real catastrophe, calling me from private life.

"Crime extends its horrible wings over the whole republic of Venezuela.

FOGEL READY TO PLACE BALL TEAM IN NEW YORK

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 2.—Horace Fogel, former National league club owner, today submitted a proposition to the directors of the Federal league [illegible] club in New York city. Philadelphia and Baltimore also made bids for clubs and the directors began considering the advisability of making the Federal an eight club league next year. No action other than the appointing of committees to consider the claims of each city and look over the ground that could be obtained for the ball parks was taken today and directors adjourned to meet tonight.

Heat a Menace to Lives of Old Folks

Sickness and Misery Result From Clogged Bowels in Hot Weather.

People advancing in years should be very careful of their health during the hot months, as heat has a very enervating and weakening effect on them. One has only to look at the daily list of fatalities to aged people reported by the papers to realize that these are the hardest months for them to overcome.

The easily digested foods should be eaten, and their only beverages and alcoholic beverages and red wines should be avoided as much as possible. Exercise should be taken only in the shade. Most importance of all for maintenance of health and vigor at this time is to avoid constipation. This is accompanied by biliousness and irregular and blood congestion. This is accomplished by the use of a gentle laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is the ideal laxative for elderly people as it is mild, tastes pleasant and does not gripe. Best of all, it contains valuable tonic properties that build up and strengthen the system.

Elderly people should avoid strong physics, cathartics, purgatives, salts and pills, as they are a shock to the system. In the opinion of reliable people like Mrs. C. J. Nicholas, 2016 Emerson St., Berkeley, Cal., who stresses it a benefit to mankind, and [illegible] Milbrsack, 210 N. Law St., Allentown, Pa., who declares that her stomach and bowels are now in perfect working order, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the right remedy to use. It can be obtained of any druggist at 50 cents or one dollar a bottle. The latter size is bought steadily by those who already know its value.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 412 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

WILSON SEES JOHNSON OVATION; CLEVELAND THREATENING MACKS

Getting Near to Top Through Wonderful Playing of Nap Lajoie

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Johnson day attracted President Wilson and the largest crowd of the season to American league park today to see Walter Johnson, Washington's star pitcher, presented with a huge silver loving cup filled with crisp new $10 bills. Johnson won his game, 3 to 2.

The day marked the sixth anniversary of the pitcher's big league career. Although nine hits were made off him, they were widely scattered, and he held Detroit, the first team he faced in the American league, safe all the way.

The loving cup was presented to him by the "fans." In it were more than $800 in bills, and, as he accepted the gift, players of both teams picked up a yellow back and wiped his brow with it. President Wilson joined heartily in the ceremonies, cheering and applauding as loud as any of the spectators. He arrived after Johnson received the gift, but gave the pitcher a great hand when he entered the box.

GRIFFIN WINS WESTERN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Californian's Play Stamps Racquet World: Has Chance to Win American Title

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—California's supremacy in western tennis was upheld today by the newest star of the state's great galaxy, Clarence Griffin. Coming through his first tournament on grass courts, the boyish champion wound up a brilliant campaign by a hard-earned victory over Joseph Armstrong, whose game threatened for a time this week to put Minnesota in nearly as prominent a place on the tennis map as the Golden state.

The western doubles championship was won by Heath Byford and R. H. Burdick, by an easy victory in the final round over Walter Hays and John H. Winston, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The new champion pair, according to the program, will compete at Newport Tuesday with the eastern champions, Gustave Touchard and W. M. Washburn, while the southern pair, Robert Shelton and J. B. Adoue, will play Clarence Griffin and John Strachan, the Pacific coast champions.

The winning teams will battle on Wednesday for the privilege of playing McLoughlin and Bundy for the national championship at Newport, August 18.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Prince Palatine, the horse for which J. B. Joel, the South African capitalist, paid the record price of $250,000 this week, has proved something of a disappointment in its initial race as the costliest race horse in the world. In the race for the Goodwood cup yesterday, although there were only six runners, Prince Palatine failed to finish among the first three, and reached the winning post in a distressed condition. Joel's disappointment, however, is somewhat relieved by the fact that a condition upon which he purchased the horse from T. Pilkington was that if the horse were beaten in any of its engagements this season $25,000 would be deducted from the purchase price.

New Era Dawning In Ocean Commerce

New York Gets Striking Illustration of Fact That Size, Not Speed, Is Becoming Paramount in Ocean Vessels—Young America Quakes as Peanut Famine Threatens—Valuing a Newspaper Proves Knotty Problem—Land Bought for $8,000 Now Worth $200,000,000—Unique $15,000 Home for Cats.

NEW YORK.—The arrival and departure of the giant liner Imperator has called attention in a striking manner to the change that has taken place in recent years in the aim and spirit of ocean commerce. Formerly the aim in the building of great liners was all for speed. Now it is size, stability and safety.

It is now three years since the present transatlantic record was established and shipping experts predict that this record will stand for a long time to come. On the other hand, the size of the Atlantic liners is constantly increasing and their comforts and safety appliances are being multiplied. The tonnage of the Imperator, for example, is nearly double that of the biggest ship afloat a dozen years ago.

Not only is the tendency of the times away from the dangerous speed mania of former years, but it is pointed out here that there is a rapidly growing movement toward the establishment of a greater spirit of cooperation among the great shipping interests of the world. If the various conferences made up of representatives of the leading interests in various shipping fields receive official approval, it seems possible as a result of recent investigations, it is held by trade experts, that a great impetus will be given toward the establishment of worldwide commercial peace, which is regarded as the strongest possible guarantee of peace between nations.

A bill that bids fair to upset important national institutions and to bring distress to several million young Americans is threatened by the discovery made here this week that the country is now to face a famine of peanuts. Although the production of peanuts has been increased more rapidly in the past 10 years than that of any other crop except beets and rice, while importations from foreign countries have more than doubled, demand has outrun supply to such an extent that wholesale prices have risen to over 10 cents a pound for the Spanish product within the present month.

Two main causes are given by wholesale dealers to account for the great advance in the consumption of peanuts. One of these is the great increase in their use in the manufacture of food products; the other is the multiplication of amusement parks and automatic vending machines. It is pointed out that a single large concern engaged in the manufacture of peanut butter uses as high as 150 carloads of nuts in the course of a season and that this is a demand that has grown up entirely within the past few years.

Over 20,000,000 bushels of peanuts are produced yearly in the United States, which is equivalent to upward of 2,000,000,000 5-cent sacks, but it is predicted, in view of the present situation, that these sacks must become smaller in capacity or higher in price. Thus will another burden be added to the high cost of living.

A knotty problem placed before the law officers of the state of New York is that of determining the proper valuation to be placed upon the good will of a metropolitan newspaper. The question arose in appraising the estate of the late Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the New York World and St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Expert opinion was sought in order to settle the question, but the opinions of the experts varied widely. C. M. Palmer, a newspaper broker, placed the value of the World at $5,000,000, while Frank A. Munsey, publisher of several magazines and newspapers, fixed his estimate at just double this figure.

Adolph S. Ochs, proprietor of the New York Times, declared that the personality of the man behind an influential newspaper was the most valuable asset and that the death of the man whose name was closely linked with it in the public mind made it extremely difficult to appraise the good will value remaining. The value of an Associated Press franchise in New York was estimated by the experts at from $100,000 to $200,000. This net result of the inquiry thus far seemed to be that newspapers defy ordinary standards of valuation.

One of the early Dutch governors of New York was honored this week by having a statue erected to his memory for what he probably considered at the time as one of the least important acts of his official career. The name of this worthy colonial ruler was Jacob Leisler, and the act that led to his immortalization in bronze was the purchase in 1688 of 6,000 acres of land on the site of the present city of New Rochelle, the most famous of New York's suburbs, which a popular comedian has made known everywhere as "forty-five minutes from Broadway." The land was purchased to provide homes for a colony of Huguenot refugees from La Rochelle, France, who promptly named their new home after the one that they had left behind in the old world.

As an illustration of the advance in realty values since the colonial period it is interesting to note that the price paid for the land was $8,000 and "one fat calf" annually to be presented to the descendants of the original owner every 24th of June. Its present worth, without including the fat calf, is probably $200,000,000.

A mansion that would be pointed out with pride in many American communities is being erected here by a New York society woman for the exclusive occupancy of her favorite cats. Fifteen thousand dollars is to be the cost of this feline palace, aside from the value of the ground on which it will stand. It will contain every up-to-date improvement, including electric lights, a fully equipped kitchen, a kittens' nursery, tiled bathrooms, and a handsome reception room for visitors. Fireproof construction is to be employed and the building, when completed will house a family of 28 of the bluest of blue-blood cat aristocrats in the entire country.

The owner of this remarkable home is Mrs. Clifford B. Harmon, wife of a New York business man who has gained some fame as an amateur aviator. The collection of cats that is to occupy this luxurious establishment is said to be one of the most valuable in the country.

Dumb Reasoning Animals

Show Many Human Characteristics

From the Detroit Free Press.

Every animal lover can tell numerous stories illustrating the devotion of animals to their human protector. Anecdotes of one animal risking its life to save another are rare, but still sufficiently numerous and authentic to leave no doubt as to the occasional existence of a true love between animals. But any close observer of nature will know that there exists throughout the brute creation a sort of rough moral system which, in case of domestic animals, translates itself to what really amounts to a code of etiquette.

The old proverb, "The dog with the bone has many friends," is nothing else than a recognition of canine etiquette. It does not matter how small is the dog with the bone. It may be a Pomeranian surrounded by mastiffs. The mastiffs will still remain friendly. They will hover around the Pomeranian, perhaps whining for a morsel (which is never offered), and eagerly picking up any splinter that may be dropped, when nothing would be easier than to bowl the little dog over and seize the bone.

You will notice, further, that the little dog becomes filled with a new courage, presumably in the moral consciousness of the justice of his claim, and will growl and even snap at a dog he otherwise fears if the latter should come too close.

But the moment a dog drops his bone a new rule of etiquette operates, for it becomes the property of the first dog who cares to pick it up. True, a dispute will sometimes arise as to whether the bone has actually been dropped "within the meaning of the act." But once this is clear the law of the bone will be observed by all save the exceptional "hooligan" dog, met with occasionally, who outrages all the laws of dogdom, even to the biting of his master.

RIGID SOCIAL LAWS.

Another rigid social law is that no gentleman dog must ever, in any circumstances, offer violence to a lady dog. It is not the slightest use to plead that "she began it." If a female should so far forget herself, as not infrequently happens, the mere male has no alternative to enduring her snap save seeking safety in flight.

Of course a dog, being only canine after all, will sometimes, under severe provocation, break this law. But if he is one of a pack it is 10 to 1 that the other males will set upon him and mete out severe punishment for his grave offense.

Moreover, although a dog is quite entitled to rush suddenly upon a foe and take him unawares, he may not do so if the other is eating or drinking.

Dogs are by no means the only animals that have a distinct sense of property. The squirrel regards his tree much as the dog regards his bone. He has a definite right to it, both as a dwelling and a means of subsistence; and on rare occasions when another squirrel disputes the right or blunders accidentally on his tree he will fight fiercely in defense of that which the law of the woods allows him to regard as his own. If he wishes to forage afield he must choose a tree that has not been appropriated by one of his tribe.

Foxes, too, have a clear knowledge of the "difference between mine and thine." Farmers may not have noticed it, perhaps, but this is probably because it applies only to other foxes. Nearly all breeds have their own areas and refrain from trespassing on those of their neighbors.

Ernest Thompson Seton, the well-known naturalist and hunter, has stated that among a particular breed of foxes, the blue foxes of Alaska, which are monogamous, there exists such a respect for the "marriage tie" that if a female loses her mate she will practically never take another. He tells the story of a hunter who, in all seriousness, remarked: "Until we can break down the high moral standard of these foxes our profits will be greatly curtailed."

Nothing Is Really New

Many of the Inventions Were Known to the Ancients

From Answers, London.

A great discovery has just been made in Rome. Digging about in the palace of the Caesars, a famous archaeologist found that at least three large elevators were once in use there, one of the shafts being 120 feet long. So it seems that the Roman emperors need elevators.

They used taxis, too, or might have. The old Roman historian, Vitrivius, writing in 79 A. D., describes the taxi of that day. The mechanism of the meter caused a stone to drop into a box under the carriage every thousand paces traveled. At the end of the journey the driver counted the stones in the box, and so fixed his fare. And it is said that China had taxis thousands of years ago, a thin stream of water running into a bowl taking the place of the Roman box and stones.

Safety pins were invented some 50 years ago. The inventor made thousands of pounds from his simple device. It brought him fame and a knighthood. People wondered how the world had got on without this crowning necessity of civilization.

SAFETY PINS IN POMPEII.

The answer is that it did not need to. Excavations in the buried city of Pompeii some six years ago brought to light thousands of perfectly formed bronze safety pins of quite as good design as those made nowadays. The English inventor, in fact, was knighted for an invention he did not invent.

The Teddy bear sounds pretty modern. It really isn't. In the British museum and elsewhere hundreds of Greek and Roman toys are to be seen, among them scores of sorts of dolls, with dolls' with dolls' houses and furniture, as well as grotesque images of animals for the amusement of babies. Among these animals, which have often jointed legs, some are distinctly intended to represent baby bears.

As for articles of the toilet, we could not teach the Romans much there. They had manicure cases, razors, powder puffs, scent bottles and hooks and eyes.

The art of heating houses is not very far advanced in Europe yet. It is only in America that the average house is heated throughout from a central boiler. But among the ruins of many fashionable Roman suburbs villas have been found fitted, not only with hot and cold taps, but with an excellent system of central heating.

SHORTHAND IN ROME.

Combination locks, locks which can only be opened by a combination of certain numbers or letters, sound the last word of civilization in mechanical ingenuity. As a matter of fact, they were well known and in extensive use in China thousands of years ago.

In China, too, they illuminated their houses a couple of thousand years ago with natural gas, distributed through long bamboo tubes.

As far as we know, the typist is quite a product of our own days—at any rate, as far as typing goes. But the shorthand clerk is older than Christianity. In ancient Rome shorthand clerks took down notes of law cases, just as they do now.

Watt is usually credited with the invention of the steam engine. He only reinvented it. Nero of Alexandria described steam engines 2,000 years before Watt's time. He also gives a careful account of the turbine system of applying power.

EVEN THE LONG HATPIN.

Lots of civilized countries are just now making, or thinking of making, laws against the dangerous long hatpin. Even this problem is not new. In an old Latin comedy a shopkeeper tells how he had his cheek pricked when walking to the theater, and declares that it ought to be put a stop to by the law.

"Votes for women," even, is as old as the hills. One of the most famous of Greek comedies tells of women, tired of being ruled by men, setting up a parliament of their own, and gives all the arguments we hear today.

In fact, anyone who wants to think of something really new will have to think a long time. Probably even this article was written thousands of years ago.

PRAIRIE DOGS AND THE GRAZING INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON.—As a detail of its campaign against prairie dogs on the sheep and cattle ranges of the west, the biological survey of the department of agriculture is using carbon bisulphide in connection with eight tons of poisoned grain for the extermination of the little pests on the ranges of the Coconino National forest, Arizona.

Generally the biological survey works to prevent the extinction of birds and mammals. In the present instance it justifies its war against prairie dogs on the principle of the campaign against the bubonic plague rat and squirrel, or against the rabbit which girdles fruit trees.

The damage done by the prairie dog, it is pointed out, affects the stock raising industry in two ways. First, many acres are laid bare in the neighborhood of prairie dog villages, and the amount of food available for cattle is proportionally reduced. Second, valuable animals, frequently horses, have to be killed after having broken a leg in a prairie dog hole.

According to the department's expert the stock industry has unwittingly favored the increase of prairie dogs by killing off coyotes that prey upon stock but are also natural enemies of the prairie dogs.

Last year on the Cochetopa National forest of Colorado 15 tons of poisoned oats freed some 26,000 acres of grazing land from prairie dogs. On the Pike National forest, in the same state, seven tons of oats were used to clear 60,000 acres. This year five or six tons of the poisoned grain only was used on the Cochetopa and three tons sufficed for the Pike.

It is estimated that on all the national forests, about 277,000 acres, which had been rendered worthless for grazing purposes by prairie dogs, have been restored to their former usefulness. Since it takes on the average 40 acres to support one cow, or eight sheep, this means a gain in the carrying capacity of the range sufficient to run 6,950 cattle or 55,600 sheep.

In 1908 the government began to carry out this campaign, and in 1911 worked on a large scale; it was so successful that in 1912 the quantity of poison put out was doubled. This year's campaign is one of cleaning up the areas where there was almost complete extermination in 1912.

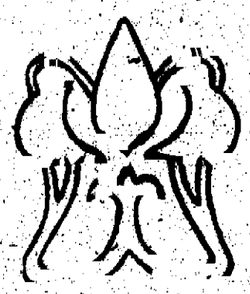
The fleur de lys design lends itself nicely to its simplicity, for the flower use the outline stitch with the long and short stitch for the petals, and solid work where the petals curl over. Punch work forms the background. Four sections complete the candle shade.

The Wood Block Adapted to Gown Decoration



The wood-block so generally used by the Japanese may be, in its simplest form, a very practical and beautiful way of ornamenting a gown. One of the greatest advantages of the wood-block is that it may be used as a border, all-over design, or in most any way that the style of the gown calls for. In some ways the wood-block resembles the stencil that is perhaps familiar to us. The stencil, however, gives a rather set, stiff appearance, while the print made from a wood-block gives a soft, artistic effect.

A [illegible] can make a wood-block. First, obtain a small block of wood, a soft wood without a fine grain. Trace the design on the block and dig out the background with a sharp knife so that the design stands out in relief. All are then ready for printing.

Lay the gauze over a piece of blotting paper and fasten it securely so that it will not slip and mix some turpentine in gasoline with oil paint of the color to be used into a rather thin paste; then with a brush rub the color as smoothly as possible over the raised design. Now we are ready for printing.

Turn the block over and press firmly the paint covered design onto the material, repeating the process in any desired arrangement.

Miss Norris' Answers to Correspondents

Ribbon Roll

A RIBBON roll which may be hung by the side of the dressing table can be very readily made.

Cover four disks of cardboard, two inches in diameter, with flowered and plain ribbon. Overcast the two plain silk covered disks to the two flowered silk circles.

Wrap lingerie ribbon around a large spool, which has been enameled white and run a ribbon through the spool, then through the centre of a disk on either side. Secure the ribbon under a bow on each disk and suspend it by means of ribbon, so that it can be hung within easy distance of the dresser.

The ribbon by which the roll is suspended and that used for the bows at the side of the disk should be the same color as that used for the inside of the disk.

Rosette Embroidery.

Mrs. O. N.—Rosette embroidery is that embroidery where rosettes of floss are used to form the flowers of the design. This work is more of a hand craft and meets the demand for quick embroidery. The embroidery stitches used are outlining and couching. Any kind of a knot or braiding stitch can be substituted for the couching stitch.

After the embroidery is finished the rosettes are sewed over the stamped goods where the flower forms are indicated.

The ruche-stitch, which is an old and familiar crochet stitch is usually employed to make the rosettes. The foundation is a chain, the length of the chain depending upon the size the rosette is to be. Insert the hook in the first stitch from the needle, wind the floss three times around a large pencil, draw through and fasten with a tight chain-stitch. Repeat this process the length of the chain and then sew the strip around and around in a widening circle to form the rosette.

The double Irish crochet roses can be substituted with good effects for the ruche rosette.

The floss used should be of rather heavy quality and lustrous.

Serviceable Gift.

Mrs. [illegible]—A very acceptable gift for anyone who expects to take a Summer trip, is a washable case or bag containing two small fine face towels and a washrag.

A very dainty gift can be made of these serviceable articles by embroidering the case in a cross-stitch pattern of rose in two shades of pink and green. Embroider the towels to match and make a crocheted washrag of pink and white. If preferred the small towel and case can be embroidered in solid satin stitch, using pink and white mercerized floss and then the whole scheme would be pink and white, a combination that is always gay.

Luncheon Favor.

Mrs. H. H.—A dainty bonbon box, suitable for a luncheon favor can be made of crepe paper in the form of a rose, or daisy or any flower, which successfully carries out the color idea.

A rose is perhaps the easiest flower to make, although almost any flower could be fashioned with a little ingenuity. To make the rose, cut petals from crepe paper and curl them around the edges on the center curving outward. The center is one of the little pink paper cups that come in candy boxes. The petals are made long enough so that they can be wrapped under the cup with wire. The rose cup is then fastened to a green stem, made by twisting crepe paper around wire. Crepe paper leaves are added and the rose cup is complete.

A large bonbon is placed in the center of each rose and the effect is very quaint and charming.

LUXEMBURG WOULD BE FIRST POINT OF ATTACK IN CONFLICT

Writer Points Out Weak Defense in Case Germany and France Should Go to War in Near Future

By GEORGES DUFRENE.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—In President Poincaré, whose name curiously enough means "the clenched first," the kaiser's famous "mailed first policy" seems to have found a worthy antagonist, whose iron will is second to none, and, with the passage of the three years' military service bill in France, a foregone conclusion, it is quite natural that Germans are trying to discover how they would be situated should war break out, and the discoveries made are not always of the most reassuring kind.

It is suggested that the French have directed special attention on the Wilhelm Luxemburg railroads, which are the best in the country and are leased and worked by Germany. Germans, it appears, have felt particularly safe in respect of these railroad lines, for it was felt that they could not be used to much advantage by the French, whereas they could render the Germans excellent service. In view, however, of the presence of French automobile troops at Longway and of the "French nurses" along the Luxemburg frontier, the writer expresses the opinion that Germany can hardly rely on the security of these railroads. He mentions the fact that there is no military force in Luxemburg that could offer any resistance to the French troops and adds that what is more important is that the feelings entertained by the Luxemburg government and people towards France are far more friendly than they are that toward Germany and Prussia. LUXEMBURG WOULD BE FIRST POINT OF ATTACK IN CONFLICT

Writer Points Out Weak Defense in Case Germany and France Should Go to War in Near Future

By GEORGES DUFRESNE.

PARIS Aug 2—In President Poincare, whose name curiously enough means "the clenched fist" the kaiser's famous "mailed first policy" seems to have found a worthy antagonist, whose iron will is second to none, and, with the passage of the three years military service bill in France, a foregone conclusion, it is quite natural that Germans are trying to discover how they would be situated should war break out, and the discoveries made are not always of the most reassuring kind

A prominent writer in a Berlin paper has just called attention to the peculiar position in which Luxemburg would be placed in the event of war between Germany and France. The writer states that the whole French side of the Luxemburg frontier is closely occupied by French troops, whose base is the fortress of Longway. The birds whistle from the roofs of the town of Luxemburg, he says, that a large number of automobiles are stationed at Longway in readiness to convey specially trained men, who speak German and know every road and path in Luxemburg, into the Grand Duchy the moment war is declared. This for the purpose of occupying the most important points and roads

Feel Safe Over Roads.

It is suggested that the French have directed special attention on the Wilhelm Luxemburg railroads which are the best in the country and are leased and worked by Germans Germans, it appears have felt particularly safe in respect of these railroad lines for it was felt that they could not be used to much advantage by the French whereas they would render the Germans excellent service In view, however, of the presence of French automobile troops at Longway and of the French masses along the Luxemburg frontier, the writer expresses the opinion that Germany can hardly rely on the security of those railroad lines

He mentions the fact that there is no military force in Luxemburg that could offer any resistance to the German troops and adds that what is more important is that the feelings cherished by the Luxemburg government and people towards France are far more friendly than those cherished towards Germany and Prussia The official language of the government, he declares, is undoubtedly French, French history is taught "in the most flattering manner" in the schools, and French is used for public notices and indications.

Finally, the writer remarks, Luxemburg will go to Germany. Most of her trade is with that country. German rail roads have [illegible] fortunes and [illegible] in the country. [illegible] to [illegible] on the Luxemburg Moselle, which were built [illegible] Nevertheless [illegible] and school [illegible] are quite French in their views and inclinations, that the newspapers read by the educated classes are mainly French, and that a Luxemburg National Anthem exists—the intention never to become Prussian.

"Going to the dogs" comes from the east, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression, "tell it to the marines," used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and so anyone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled

The young wife happy in the thought of the evening that awaited her hurried to the restaurant Groshev received her with that flattering solicitude the well born Russian knows so well how to assume Champagne of the finest vintages was ordered and the orchestra was commanded to play the most entrancing airs The wine flowed freely, and while the musicians were playing that exquisite Russian thing Forgotten as the Tender Rose the husband raised his glass in the presence of the manager who acted as servitor and cried I drink to the health of my beloved wife! GERMANY WILL HAVE FIRST AIR IRONCLAD

Powerful Craft for Warfare Just Perfected; Superior to Zeppelin

BERLIN Aug 2—Thanks to the unusual slowness of the English government which at first seemed inclined to buy a German inventor's wonderful dirigible under the very noses of the German authorities but later appeared to forget all about the matter Germany will shortly possess the first real ironclad of the air an invention of the Hanoverian engineer Herr Gustav Unger of which his excellency von Jebuhr the expert of the kaiserat said that if it hits a church tower, the tower will give way first

Outwardly the vessel looks like a Zeppelin except that the wooden cabin with bows like those of an old East Indiaman runs the whole length of the vessel also that there are no box-like rudders and the vessel has six screws, two on each side and one

DETAILS OF SCOTT LETTER TOO HORRIBLE TO DISCLOSE

Recipient Will Give It to the British Museum; England Alarmed Over Decrease in Birth Rate

By PHILLIP EVERETT

LONDON Aug [illegible] It is not generally known that Sir James Matthew Barrie who [illegible] thousands of admirers have not yet [illegible] accustomed to his new title was one of the closest friends of the late and gallant Captain Scott of the Antarctic expedition Sir James Barrie received a letter from Captain Scott written after the explorer's companion had perished in the tent, and the document was so terrible in its tragedy that Barrie has refused even to hint at its contents to his most intimate friends He has, however, preserved the letter and it is now understood that he will leave it in his will to the British museum

Birth Rate Decreases.

I wonder if our intimacy with France has affected us and caused us to imitate our allies, for ever since we entered the entente cordiale our birth rate has been going down and official statistics recently published show that in 1912 it was the lowest ever recorded, falling below last year's record by 0.6 per 1,000 and being 3.6 per 1,000 below the average for the preceding 10 years. The death rate was also the lowest ever recorded, and so was the mortality of infants. The infantile death rate was 85 per 1,000 births, or 35 per 1,000 less than the rate in 1911 and 30 per 1,000 below the average 10 years' average.

In London there were 43,277 marriages, or 18.8 per 1,000 of the population. This rate is the highest since 1911 The birth rate again fell and was only 24.9 per 1,000, the lowest since registration was established. Of the 800,968 notified births, 2,872 were twins [illegible] each at the bow and the stern. Inside the vessel shows a complete difference, the framework being a series of [illegible] tubes carries from stern to bow, the lowest forming the keel of the cabin The tubes are brought together [illegible] at the stern and the bow, and end in nickel steel steel caps

Carries Gas Ballonets

Gas ballonets are arranged in three sets of seven tubes lying parallel to the length of the ship instead of transversely, as in the Zeppelins, in addition to two globular gas ballonets inserted in the stern and the bow. Each ballonet is contained in a series of circular rings of sheet steel connected by steel tubing running fore and aft and fastened also to sheet steel bands running round the whole body of the ship A transverse section thus looks something like a honeycomb with circular cells

Herr Unger says the difference between his ship and a Zeppelin in this respect is that the Zeppelin framework will break under the strain of a side wind blowing at eight meters per second The Unger will withstand a wind blowing at 18 meters

Screws at the bow and stern are driven by the airship's own motors from machine rooms contained in the cabins built on the steel caps The vessel is steered by side screws, which being mounted on transverse outrigger tubes carried in fore and aft tubes [illegible] on individual parts of the [illegible] The vessel is thus [illegible] in its own axis

THE THEATRES

Wildfire at The Burns

[illegible] "Wildfire," the George [illegible] and George Broadhurst [illegible] the track, caught the popular [illegible] like its name. It is this [illegible] comedy in which Lillian [illegible] starred for three seasons with big success, that will be presented by [illegible] at the Burns [illegible] week. Twice each day for the balance of the week, "Wildfire" will excite the interest of playgoers with an intensely [illegible] approximated by a [illegible]-day racing drama. It is deliciously humorous in spite of its intensity, and powerfully dramatic despite its comedy. That sounds like a paradox, and it is a paradox, but "Wildfire" reconciles it with a continuity of plot and a consistency of action which makes the play seem in truth a chapter from real life.

The story is one of unrestrained humor on the part of a "blue stocking" community is the central theme about which the action revolves.

"Wildfire" is the name of a horse. Mrs. Henrietta Barrington has been left a legacy in the shape of a racing stable by her late husband, who conducted the establishment under the name of the John Duffy stables. Mrs. Barrington's sister, Myrtle, is engaged to Ralph Woodhurst, whose father, a clergyman, is opposed to gambling in all forms and to horse racing in particular. Therefore, wishing to further the interests of the young people, Mrs. Barrington keeps her ownership of the stable a secret, known only to herself and her trainer, Matt Donovan. She is loved by John Garrison, who made a fortune in the west and loves horses, and by Fred Sanderson, an automobile enthusiast. Her inclination is toward Garrison. A man named John Duffy, supposed to be the owner of the stables, pesters Mrs. Barrington with his attentions and she cannot take any action against him without danger of her interest in horse racing being discovered. Garrison, while in the west, knew Duffy, and when he finds that Mrs. Barrington is being bothered by the man, determined to rain him by defeating his horse. To this end he buys a rival to Wildfire with the intention of winning the race on the following day.

The second act shows the training stable at the track on the afternoon of the great race. Mrs. Barrington has staked everything on Wildfire and so has Ralph Woodhurst, who owes $20,000 to Duffy and hopes to win enough to pay it back. So has the stable boy, Bud, who hopes to double his $3 for the sake of his little sister's fresh air outing. A new jockey has been engaged for the race. Chappie, Master Chappie, takes his orders from Matt Donovan, though he prefers to deal with the supposed owner, John Duffy, in person. He is told by Donovan to win the race. But Duffy catches him alone and orders him to lose if he does not see a white handkerchief waved from a window of the trainers' quarters. Bud overhears the conversation and tells Mrs. Barrington. She instructs Donovan to win the race. She introduces herself to Duffy, makes him believe she is interested in him, and attracts his attention to her sufficiently to permit her to steal his handkerchief and wave it from the window. Wildfire wins.

In the last act Mrs. Barrington arranges an elopement for Ralph and Myrtle, fearing that Ralph's father will learn that she owns the stable. She also accepts the proposal of Fred Sanderson, in the belief that Garrison has been in conspiracy with Duffy. Sanderson finds out that Garrison had nothing to do with Duffy's villainy, and, being very noble, refuses to hold his fiancee to her promise, especially when he finds that she loves Garrison. And Garrison buys the stable.

The management is preparing a production which will compare favorably with the original of "Wildfire," also provided a cast which can lose nothing by any system of comparisons.

Remember the curtain rises promptly at 8:15 p. m.

Ex-Champion Jimmie Britt and Nine Piano Bugs Attraction at Empress

Jimmie Britt, who is appearing at the Empress this week, tells an amusing story, following a trip he made into the wilds of Canada on a hunting trip. He had been in the woods about a month and was as hard as nails. Returning homeward, his train stopped at Moose Jaw. The train he was to take from Moose Jaw did not leave until midnight, so he and his friends sauntered into a burlesque show to pass away the time. At the conclusion of the performance the manager of the burlesque show offered anyone [illegible] if they could stay with the champion four rounds. Britt volunteered. No one knew him, so he thought it would be a good lark. He stayed with the ex-champ four rounds. The manager then refused to pay, saying that Britt had run away from his champion. Britt then offered the manager $100 if his champion would go two more rounds with him, which was accepted. Britt stalled for the first round, and during the middle of the second round he [illegible] the champ [illegible] a [illegible] point of the jaw [illegible] fast asleep, not waking up for [illegible] utes. When he did he realized that he had been abroad, and dined with the late King Edward. By [illegible] time the audience was in an uproar, and there was nothing in Moose Jaw too good for Jimmy.

Fifteen minutes of songs and comedy, with lots of absurd things mixed in, will constitute the offering of Edward Barnes and Mabel Robinson, who will be a feature of the coming bill at the Empress. From opera to ragtime and from Shakespeare to travesty will be gone over by this versatile pair.

An event which will go a long way toward holding up the reputation of the Empress will be presented during the coming week, when the Nine Piano Bugs make their initial appearance. It is declared to be a charming combination of instrumental and vocal numbers. The act was first produced at The Friars Minstrel Frolic, where it scored heavily. The act is headed by a quartet of performers hard to beat. The list includes Stone, Jackson, Wahl and Gibbonpoint, but charmingly attractive, Mae Bronte, Dixie Crane, Rose Gardner and Lillian Kendal are others in the cast, while Henry Johnson and Harold Vincent furnish a share of the amusement. The costuming is said to be elaborate.

In presenting "The Test," Agnes Lee and company will offer an incident in "small town" life, full of subtle comedy and drama, but appealing little poems of love triumphing over duty, where a man's sense of duty can be stretched into good judgment, viz. while a crime has been committed in the sense of the law, proper restitution is made by replacing the stolen money, hence no one is harmed; and while the theft is none the less amenable to the strict rules of the postoffice department, its representative, the inspector, finds that "humanity to all" is a good policy to pursue, for he has saved many otherwise good men from prison and humiliation by practicing the "golden rule." This, in short, is the story that will be told by Agnes Lee and her company in "The Test," next week. The piece was written by a St. Paul newspaper man, and carries four people.

The Wheelers and company, in their ludicrous pantomime comedy of fun and frolic, called "Fun on the Roller," are scheduled to supply an abundance of laughter and surprises at the Empress next week. The act is one of the funniest yet sent over the circuit, according to critics. Nellie Wheeler is one of the most fascinating young women to be sent over the circuit, and together with her brothers, present the big laugh of the season.

The private secretary of the Maraha jah of Jhalawar recently gave a lecture on food in London, in the course of which he stated that the eating of onions is conducive to "darkness of spirit." He also averred that the caste system in India is largely regulated by diet. Thus, those of the highest caste only eat vegetarian meals in order to keep their souls pure. Members of another caste are allowed to eat meat so that they may become fitter warriors, while the lowest caste eat stale flat foods, which suit their unspiritual natures.

New York Theatrical Letter

By EMILY CALVERT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—According to the present plans of the big Broadway producing managers, the coming season will outstrip any previous season of the past decade in the number and magnitude of dramatic productions. It promises to be a record-making season, not only in the number of productions, but in the outflow of past seasons' successes from New York to [illegible] population has supported an excellent stock company which has been consistently showing up the Broadway "road shows" which were not the genuine article, and "damaged goods" don't go any more.

The New York managers have complained or argued heretofore that the hazards of the "road" are so great that they could not afford to send their high-salaried stars away from Broadway, and meet the other increased expenses of a traveling company. If they couldn't succeed with their high-priced Broadway cast, how in the world could they expect to succeed without it? It has taken several years for them to figure this out, and for a long time they went along on the theory that the people would not know the difference.

At top from left to right, Laura Hamilton in the "Passing Show of 1913" at the Winter Garden, and Lois Josephine also of the Winter Garden forces. Below, from left to right, Evelyn Carlton with Ziegfeld's Follies at the New Amsterdam, and Florence Nash in "Within the Law" at the Eltynge theater.

I do hereby solemnly swear and guarantee to make no charge if I fail to call full names of your friends, enemies or rivals. I promise to tell you whether your husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false, tell you how to gain the love of the one you most desire, even though miles away, how to succeed in business, speculation, lawsuits, how to marry the one of your choice; how to regain youth, health and vitality; remove all evil influences, cures drink habit, locates treasures, cures all nervous diseases, and relieves troubled and suffering humanity in their many trials, misfortunes and bad luck, which an unkind fate or adversity has seen fit to heap upon their already tired and burdened shoulders. Professor Garland is so well known here that introduction is unnecessary. His name is a household term in thousands of homes in Colorado Springs. He has restored health where there seemed no hope in thousands. He has brought happiness, financial success, contentment and happy marriage to thousands more. He is now offering you the benefit of his priceless powers and knowledge gained during twenty of the best years of his life. Could you possibly ask more?

GARLAND WILL CAUSE THINGS TO BE AS YOU WISH.

During these twenty years he has accomplished thousands of things which the uninitiated have called miracles. And what he has done for others he certainly can do for you if you are in need of help. He has brought harmony in thousands of homes and in as many hearts, by his power and infallible advice, which he has given in all matters of business, investments, speculation, mining, weakened vitality, in matters of love, marriage, changes, sales, mortgages, lease, timber lands, advancement, locations, and in thousands of ways there mentionable. His envisible record of reuniting the separated, bringing about quick and happy marriages with the one of your choice, curing "incurable diseases," locating lost, stolen, hidden or buried articles, restoring lost affections, causing evil influences and bringing good luck and success has had no parallel in the last twenty years of his practice in Colorado Springs.

REAL ESTATE OPPORTUNITIES

NO TARIFF ON LANDS

A MAN OR WOMAN WANTED AT ONCE

WHO WANTS TO MAKE SOME MONEY AND WHO HAS MONEY TO MAKE MONEY WITH, AND DO SO WHILE THE CALAMITY HOWLER IS AFRAID TO INVEST.

There never was a time in Colorado when the opportunity was as good and safe as it is today for the man with a little money and nerve to invest. The lands in El Paso county are priced lower than any place in the United States, considering soil, climate and crops raised. If you are a doubting Thomas or if you are from Missouri I can show you where we have good farms in this county, and that their crops will bring them more money per acre this season and last season than you can buy lands for today in the same locality and just as good. COLORADO is all right, what we need is farmers and the lands and ranches you can buy of me at the prices I have, you can double your money inside of two or three years as a speculator, or if you will go on some of these ranches with cattle you will surely make the best per cent on your investment and the easiest and quickest you ever made on any investment. I am a farmer raised on a farm and a judge of lands. I do not accept of any farms or ranches that are not right in every particular and bargains. Here are a few of my bargains.

560 acres, good six room house, large barn, all lands can be cultivated, four miles from town and railroad, 15 miles from Springs. Price $6,000.

1,000 acres deeded, 2,400 leased state lands, all fenced, $10,000 improvements, large two-story frame house, modern, one barn 36x64, 20-foot posts. Stock barn 24x120, abundance of water, system of water works for house, barns and yards. Land subirrigated. Cripple Creek Mines

U. G. M. CO. MINES HEAVY PRODUCERS

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 2.—The active properties of the United Gold Mines company, operated under lease made a production of 31 cars, or approximately 900 tons of ore during the month of July.

The shipments from the respective mines were as follows: Ironclad hill, W. F. H. mine, 15 cars; Montrose dump, 1 car; Bull hill, Deadwood No. 2, 5 cars; Deadwood dump, 1 car; the mill treated 7,100 tons; Trail dump, 1 car; Squaw mountain, M. K. T. mine, 1 car; May B mine, 1 car. The ores averaged a highly lucrative grade to the mill of the Golden Cycle Mining company—controlling the U. G. M. company—at Colorado City.

The heaviest producer, the famous W. F. H. mine, on Ironclad hill, has been recently repurchased, when last it was from shockingly overhauled, a new vein has been opened, the ore is being received by the mill of R. Valentine. Two sets of lessees, Cashmore and Gus Johnson, the latter joined with one public, the workings after him, are mining an excellent grade of ore, and the mine managers are looking for better shape for heavy production than for a long time past.

Of the Bull hill group, the Silver Tip, under lease to Hemby and Anderson, is producing a fair grade of ore, and is blocking from the 300-foot level of the Annual Wild Horse shaft.

The Wild Horse mine is under lease to J. M. Hemby, who at the same time is operating the mill.

A fair grade of ore is also leaving the May B mine, on Squaw mountain. This property is under lease to the recently organized Trachyte Leasing company, operating through the old Papoose tunnel.

The estate of the United Gold Mines company is one of the largest in the district, embracing in excess of 400 acres, divided into 11 groups most favorably located.

HEAVY PRODUCTION IS MADE FROM EL PASO STATE

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 2.—Heavy production was made from both the Isabella and the new Nicholls shaft, on the El Paso Consolidated Gold Mining company's Beacon hill estate during the month just closed. In all 152 cars of ore were billed out to the valley plants, the gross tonnage approximating 3,950 tons. The ore was of the customary El Paso grades.

Of the ore shipped 114 cars were mined and shipped on company account and the remaining 38 cars by the company's lessees.

Shipments were also loaded out yesterday from the Longcomig shaft of the El Paso company and from the dumps at the old No. 1 shaft, by the respective lessees.

BONANZA KING MINE AGAIN IS PRODUCING

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 2.—The Bonanza King mine, owned by the field-old Bonanza Mining company, and located near the Anchoria-Leland, Moon Anchor and Midget mines, is again producing, and a 35-ton shipment was loaded out from the property. Charles Baumgartner and Frank Weir, operating through what is known as the "Burro Whim shaft," are sinking a winze on the main Bonanza King lode from the 60-foot level. The vein, a strong one, lies east of the main Midget, in the breccia, and carries high values. The shipment was made up of both drippings and cobble rock, the higher values lying in the screenings. Grab samples have shown values as high as five ounces, and, as a conservative estimate, will return values of from one to [illegible] or more, by the ton. The property is situated at [illegible] to [illegible] to [illegible] lease.

On the [illegible] of the above [illegible] Baumgartner and Weir, Tyler Leod and associates are also mining a good grade of ore from the [illegible] on the same vein, about, and are at the present writing getting out a shipment.

JERRY JOHNSON OUTPUT FOR MONTH OF JULY

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 2.—Due to development work undertaken by the lessees, Fogleman and Caley, the July production from the Jerry Johnson mine, on Ironclad hill, was light. The lessees are carrying on prospect work at the fourth and fifth levels, while four sets of sublessees are breaking ore. The output for the month totaled 12 cars, of about 450 tons of milling grade ore.

GETTING RID OF POWDER SMOKE

From Mining and Scientific Press.

Powder smoke can be quickly cleared from the face of an adit where ventilation is secured by the use of a small blower and the usual galvanized iron pipe, by reversing the direction of the blower. The smoke is thus sucked into the pipe and carried away without becoming mixed with the air of the adit or drift. A method commonly employed where machine drills are used is to turn on the compressed air just before firing the blast of shots and allow it to escape continuously while the smoke is clearing away. The disadvantage of this is that the use of compressed air is an expensive means of securing ventilation, and since the smoke must be driven out through the full cross-section of the drift, a much longer time is required to clear away the smoke.

NEW YORK MARKET

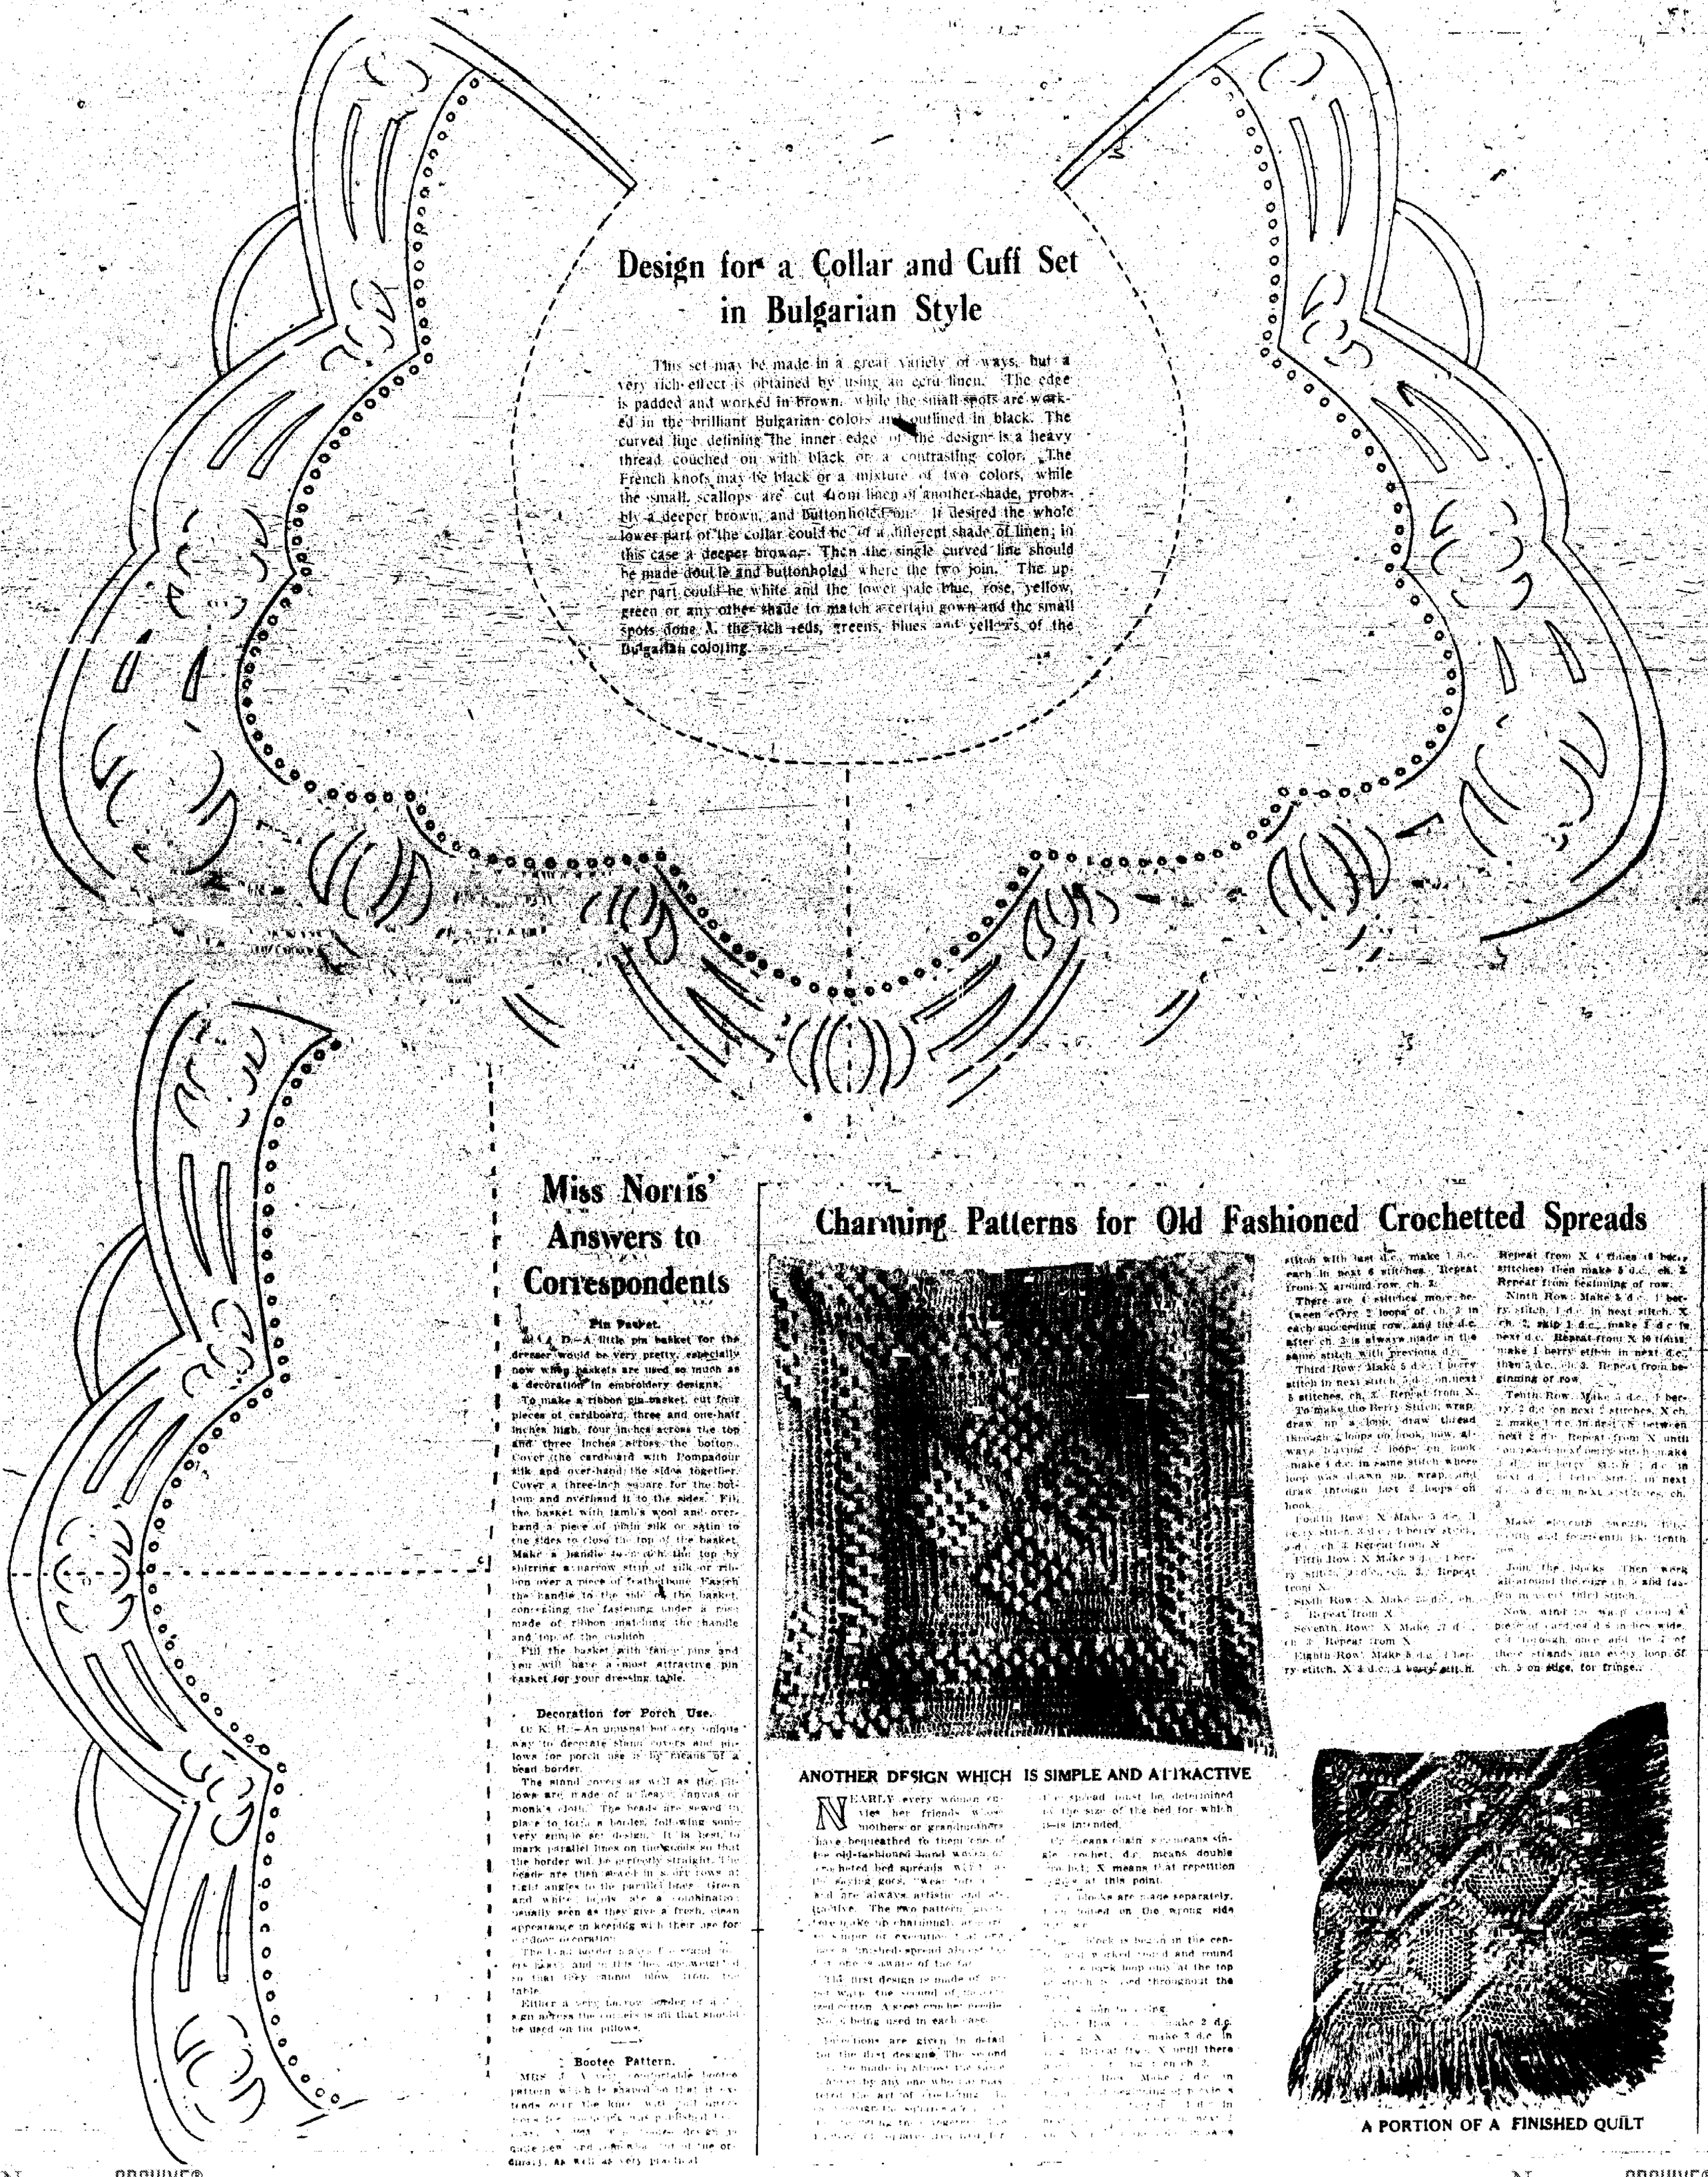
NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A new low record for midsummer dullness was scored by the stock exchange today. Total business of the two hours approximated 63,500 shares, compared with 84,000 shares on July 11, last, that day breaking all low records for something like 10 years.

The market was without its usual guide, as London was observing one of its frequent holidays, and continental exchanges were listless. About the only interesting news was contained in dispatches from southern and western points to the effect that the treasury department's plan for helping the movement of crops was meeting with favor. Wheat and corn options were higher as a result of the unbroken drought in the southwest, although welcome rains were reported from Texas.

In the early dealings leaders like Union Pacific, Steel, Amalgamated, Reading and Canadian Pacific all fell substantial fractions, but recoveries were established in most instances. Canadian Pacific more than regained its loss. Steel was the only [illegible] in which dealings approached the normal, a block of 5,000 shares changing hands at a price midway between the low and high.

The feature of the [illegible] was the [illegible] cash [illegible] of [illegible] wheat, a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WORK and PLAY for the IDLE HOUR



Design for a Collar and Cuff Set in Bulgarian Style

This set may be made in a great variety of ways, but a very rich effect is obtained by using an ecru linen. The edge is padded and worked in brown, while the small spots are worked in the brilliant Bulgarian colors and outlined in black. The curved line defining the inner edge of the design is a heavy thread couched on with black or a contrasting color. The French knots may be black or a mixture of two colors, while the small scallops are cut from linen of another shade, probably a deeper brown, and buttonholed on. If desired the whole lower part of the collar could be of a different shade of linen, in this case a deeper brown. Then the single curved line should be made double and buttonholed where the two join. The upper part could be white and the lower pale blue, rose, yellow, green or any other shade to match a certain gown and the small spots done in the rich reds, greens, blues and yellows of the Bulgarian coloring.

Miss Norris' Answers to Correspondents

Pin Basket.

M. A. D.—A little pin basket for the dresser would be very pretty, especially now when baskets are used so much as a decoration in embroidery designs.

To make a ribbon pin basket, cut four pieces of cardboard, three and one-half inches high, four inches across the top and three inches across the bottom. Cover the cardboard with Pompadour silk and over-hand the sides together. Cover a three-inch square for the bottom and overhand it to the sides. Fill the basket with lamb's wool and overhand a piece of plain silk or satin to the sides to close the top of the basket. Make a handle to match the top by shirring a narrow strip of silk or ribbon over a piece of featherbone. Fasten the handle to the side of the basket, concealing the fastening under a rose made of ribbon matching the handle and top of the cushion.

Fill the basket with fancy pins and you will have a most attractive pin basket for your dressing table.

Decoration for Porch Use.

G. K. H.—An unusual but very unique way to decorate stand covers and pillows for porch use is by means of a bead border.

The stand covers as well as the pillows are made of a heavy canvas or monk's cloth. The beads are sewed in place to form a border following some very simple set design. It is best to mark parallel lines on the goods so that the border will be perfectly straight. The beads are then sewed in short rows at right angles to the parallel lines. Green and white beads are a combination usually seen as they give a fresh, clean appearance in keeping with their use for window decoration.

The bead border makes the stand covers heavy and so in this they are weighted so that they cannot blow from the table.

Either a very narrow border of a design across the corners is all that should be used on the pillows.

Bootee Pattern.

MRS. J. A. A very comfortable bootee pattern which is shaped so that it extends over the knee will appear soon for the book now published by Miss Norris. This bootee design is quite new and combination out of the ordinary, as well as very practical.

Charming Patterns for Old Fashioned Crochetted Spreads

ANOTHER DESIGN WHICH IS SIMPLE AND ATTRACTIVE

NEARLY every woman envies her friends whose mothers or grandmothers have bequeathed to them some of the old-fashioned hand woven or crochetted bed spreads which as the saying goes, "wear and wear" and are always artistic and attractive. The two patterns given here make up charmingly, are not difficult of execution and will give a finished spread almost before one is aware of the fact.

The first design is made of fine cotton warp, the second of mercerized cotton. A great number needle No. 8 being used in each case.

Directions are given in detail for the first design. The second is to be made in almost the same manner by any one who has mastered the art of crochetting. In [illegible] the spread must be determined by the size of the bed for which it is intended.

[illegible] means chain, sc means single crochet, d.c. means double crochet, X means that repetition begins at this point.

A Resume of the Week's Gayeties

FIRST and foremost, tennis with a capital "T" [illegible] started Society [illegible] week. The [illegible] of the [illegible] watching interesting [illegible] gathered together for informal [illegible] over the ice tables on the [illegible].

Then along came the circus, and Monday night many parties gathered under the huge canvas. The day has passed and gone when only the children are entitled to enthuse over trained animals and the thrilling feats of [illegible]. Nowadays young and old yield to the lure of the circus, enter into the spirit of the thing and, with all the abandon of children, wave gay balloons, drink abominable pink lemonade and gaze wide-eyed at side-show freaks. The greatest show on earth drew a happy throng from among all classes of our own society, from Pueblo and Cripple Creek, and several dinner and supper parties added to the pleasures of the evening.

TUESDAY was rather a quiet day, though several hostesses entertained informally at luncheon or cards. In the evening Mrs. Percy Hagerman and Mrs. Ward Thorn gave a charming little dancing party at the Casino in about 30 of the younger beaux and belles for their children, Miss Louise Thorn, Lewis Hagerman and Ben Thorn.

Mrs. Barne H. Hopkins entertained a few of her friends at luncheon, and Mrs. Rush L. Holland invited several friends to her home for a bridge chat with Mrs. J. C. Vining over the bridge tables. Mrs. Vining gave it Wednesday for the guest, Mrs. R. H. Heinle of Lincoln, Neb., the guest of honor at another bridge party [illegible] given by [illegible] Miss Earl C. Henry.

SEVERAL [illegible] dinners and [illegible] took place on Wednesday. The Van Nidek entertained a number of their friends for Judge and Mrs. Kenyon B. Babbitt of New York [illegible] at the Country club. At the same time the son [illegible] of the Authors was [illegible] a smaller dinner party given in his and Mrs. A. H. Fredrick's honor. Mr. and Mrs. Frances Herrick of Toledo, Ohio. Twenty-eight covers were arranged and the dinner table was adorned with yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Charles B. Stockbridge presided over a large luncheon at the Golf club for Mrs. Lee Robinson, a friend of the senior guest honor, Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. W. Morris [illegible] Lewis was [illegible] over by Miss Dora Fillmore, and in the afternoon Miss Edinger was assisted by a number of the young matrons and maids [illegible] 60 guests at tea for Mrs. Morrison. Another attractive luncheon was that given by Mrs. Eddy and E. Tompkins [illegible] for her sister, Mrs. James L. Talbot of Jackson, Tenn.

MRS. JAMES T. ANDERSON'S exquisitely appointed luncheon at her home in Broadmoor on Thursday was given for Miss Hazel McMillan, the Potters House guest, who only Tuesday returned from a year in Paris. Miss McMillan has entered the ranks of recognized sculptors, two splendid heads which she finished last year having been exhibited in the Paris Academie des Beaux Arts this winter. She will be with the Potters during August, and numerous affairs in her honor will be given during that time by her host of friends here.

V. Z. Reeds Open New Home With Brilliant Ball Friday Night

A charming account of the Verner Z. Reed ball, one of the most brilliant social events ever given in Denver, was written for yesterday morning's Denver Republican by Flavia Gaines Leitch. For those who may not have seen the Republican we reprint this description in parts:

A REALLY beautiful ball, an informal garden party and an hour of exquisite music in one of the handsomest homes in Denver last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Verner Z. Reed combined the three in the formal opening of their magnificent home, made the night a memorable one in the social annals of Denver.

It remained for the Verner Z. Reeds to give an event that will long be remembered by those who participated and one that will be surrounded with gay reminiscences for many moons.

Season's Most Elaborate Affair.

Not in many seasons has there been such an elaborate affair offering so many forms of diversions to the guests and filling every moment of the time, from 9 o'clock until the wee sma' hours, with a joyousness that was enhanced by the softness of a thousand lights, the fragrance of many blooms, the smiles of beautiful women and the iridescence of jeweled gowns.

"Just an informal garden party and musical," said Mrs. Reed, whose entertainments created quite a furore in Paris, and whose wonderful personality gives a delicate and exquisite touch to any idea she conceives.

But those who were fortunate enough to be among the guests declare that it was one of the most artistically arranged affairs that has ever taken place in Denver and that it will long be remembered by those who listened to the alluring music by Mme. Tuma and Mr. Persinger and feasted in the pavilion surrounded by lights and flowers of trees, and supped in the wonderfully artistic parlors with pussy's blooms and trailing vines climbing through a snow white lattice work.

Shimmering Corner of Gay "Paris."

An archway of foliage and vines spanned the entrance to the home, and on each side of the green carpet that covered the marble steps palms and ferns lined the walls and the guests stepped into a shimmering corner of gay Paris.

A bit of fairyland was never prettier, and a sylvan dell was tame in comparison with the scintillating grounds that surround the Reed home.

A latticed and vine-hung pavilion in the center of the garden was a romantic place for dancing. The music floated through the air from a screen of palms and thrilling laughter and soft voices of lovely women added to the charm of the scene.

The natural beauty of the gardens with graceful oak and maple trees, a hedge of lilacs and brilliant hued flower and shrub formed a pretty background for rustic benches, hammocks, swings and cozy corners with masses of potted plants and palms and ferns.

Swinging baskets, overflowing with flowers and strings of shaded electric lights, were suspended from the trees. Each of the thousand lights was shaded with a flower of a pinkish-lavender hue, a Paris idea which Mrs. Reed had carried out in all of the decorations.

A latticed work inclosed the portico that runs the full length of the house, and it was there that the daintiest supper was served. The lattice work extended over the entrance and as if naturally climbing through the frame long blooms of Japanese wistaria trailed in and out in changing hues under the softly shaded electric bulbs.

Season's Debutants in Simple Gown.

Satins heavily embroidered with crystals and rhinestones, brocades and fleecy chiffons direct from Paris modistes, showed off to advantage the snowy throats and shoulders of the women and the stunning coiffures of heavy, fluffy hair.

Mrs. Reed received her guests in a gown she received from Paris only last week. It was black chiffon satin, of the softest texture with a bandeau is embroidery of crystals, the bodice blazing like jewels and the skirt clingy as chiffon and heavy with the beaded ornaments.

Miss Margery Reed, a debutante of the season, in simply [illegible] in white chiffon that clings to her girlish figure under a tulle confection embroidered with pearls.

Mrs. [illegible] B. Schley of Colorado Springs, exhibited one of the most dazzling pictures of the night. In a black satin gown embroidered with diamonds and diamond ornaments that gleamed against her snowy throat she was a picture of loveliness.

Musical Club Selects Another Great Artist

Mr. Willet R. Willis, president of the Colorado Springs Musical club, has announced that Willie Kreisler, one of the world's greatest violinists, has been chosen by the executive board of the club as the third artist to appear at the Burns this winter in the annual concert series.

These concerts have become firmly established as one of the most important part of our musical life. They are always well supported, for Colorado Springs truthfully boasts an unusually large contingent of music lovers and artists. But they should be even more appreciated than they are. When one stops to consider the splendid array of world-famous talent that was brought here by the club and by Mr. Burns last winter—Sembrich, Gluck, Pasquali, White, Bispham, Persinger, Elman, Moro, Ysaye, Genee—a series which is not equaled one hundred miles from New York in cities the size of ours, one realizes the debt Colorado Springs owes the Musical club—a debt which can be repaid only in loyalty.

And there is another reason for the hope that the concerts will be more successful than ever before. Last year when the members of the Musical club bravely undertook the responsibility of giving Colorado Springs orchestral concerts on Sunday afternoons they expected to meet the expense with the surplus of the concert fund. That was found to be insufficient and the club asked for a small contribution each week from those who were so greatly enjoying the Sunday musicales. This contribution was forthcoming from some but not from all, and still there was a deficit to be met. The Sunday concerts are to be continued this winter and some day, before we know it, Colorado Springs will have a symphony orchestra. Where the money is coming from no one quite knows. But everyone who cares for the future of the city as a music center, every lover of art who finds the Sunday concerts a delight, is hoping that the artist series will have so many subscribers and that the Sunday contributions will be so generous as to see the orchestra this year an assured success financially as it already is artistically.

The other artists who have been chosen are Madame Julia Culp, who is accompanied by Ludwig Hess, lieder singer, and Conrad Ruf, pianist, and Josef Hofmann, Polish pianist. The eighth number of the series is still under consideration. There has been suggested Anna Case, soprano, one of the young singers of the Metropolitan Opera company, whose success with New York audiences has been complete. It is thought that she might duplicate Mme. Nina Gluck's triumph here last year. Another famous soprano who is available for an engagement is Maggie Teyte. Madame Teyte is an English woman who sings American songs and who has become an ardent advocate of the use in concert programs. Great interest is also being shown in Kitty Cheatham, the inimitable diseuse, and many are hoping that she will be chosen by the committee. Be that as it may, the series is going to be perfectly splendid.

For Many Visitors.

Tuesday evening the resident members of Phi Delta Theta entertained their brothers who are visiting in the Pikes Peak region with a banquet at the Spot Grill. Fourteen covers were laid and an elaborate menu served. This was the first of a number of affairs of a social nature the frat men are planning for the remainder of the summer.

For Miss Farrar of Denver and Miss Nina McKeen of Cincinnati an informal thimble party was given Wednesday afternoon by Miss Ruth Law at her home, 816 North Weber street. Her guests were the Misses Templeton, Miss Essie May Cox, Miss Shirley McKinnie and Miss Ruth Brown.

Miss Farrar of Denver, who is the house guest of Miss Essie May Cox this week, was the guest of honor again Thursday afternoon when Miss Ruth Brown was hostess at an informal lawn party and tea. The tables where a late luncheon was served al fresco were daintily decorated with lavender and white sweet peas. The guests, who numbered 22, chatted and embroidered under the trees and an impromptu musical was given.

A mountain tramp was the diversion Friday of a jolly party of girls who were invited by Miss Elsie Vaughn to spend the day with her house guest, Miss Lois Lattell of Pueblo. Seven of Miss Lattell's friends "hiked" up the canon and had a picnic lunch.

A recent bride, Mrs. Alva P. Taylor of Westminster, Colo., was the guest of honor at an informal afternoon party Wednesday given by Miss Lois Edith Taylor. There were eight guests and the decorations and refreshments were carried out in gold and white.

Y. W. C. A. Vesper Tea

At this evening's vesper tea, which will be held in the association rooms in the DeGraff building at 5 o'clock, the Rev. J. Y. Ewart will speak of "The Mighty Atom" and Miss Francis Hawkinson, a talented visitor in the Springs, will sing. After the services tea will be served by the Camp Fire Girls, who are taking charge of the vesper tea this summer. All women are cordially invited to attend the service and tea.

DATES ARE SELECTED FOR MIDSUMMER FETES

Society Is Interested in Children's Theater Idea

On Saturday, August 30, and on Monday, September 1, both days and night, two elaborate society fetes will be given at the Opera house for one of the most popular of our local charities by a company of over 200 young people, all of whom have been selected for ability, talent or their especial fitness for their particular roles.

For a month past one of the busiest and one of the merriest places in the city has been the Temple theater, where the younger sets have gathered for the morning rehearsals of two operettas which are the vehicles for the fetes this year—"The Little Princess," a charming story, charmingly told, and "Much Ado," a much modernized Shakespearean melange, the scenes of which are laid in the year 2002 A. D.

Yesterday the dates for the productions were definitely set, and tomorrow will witness the launching of all the larger plans which have been quietly simmering throughout the summer.

The idea of producing the two children's plays here—plays of which "The Little Princess" is a delightful example—is an off-shoot of the childrens' theater movement in London and New York city. "The Hackett-Barkett House" which was launched in the latter city during last winter's holiday season at the Children's theater was a grandest and most endearing [illegible] the value of [illegible] dramatic [illegible] of child life and the [illegible] of [illegible] in New York, in [illegible]. An city for children there the dear people of fairy lore and of Mother Goose days may be real and relived upon the stage.

The idea is being announced here by Miss Harriet M. Bogardus of New York, who will personally direct the preparation and production of both plays. Miss Bogardus meet successfully directed the presentation of the French Fete at the Burns last autumn, firmly establishing at that time her reputation as a dramatic coach of more than ordinary ability, and the very auspicious beginning already made toward this year's productions would indicate that the "Little Princess" and "Much Ado" will achieve an even greater measure of success than any previous attempt in the line of amateur theatricals here.

No appeal to charity is to be made in the preparation of these midsummer fetes as the splendid staging, the beautiful costumes, the talent and beauty of the participants, and, lastly, the plays themselves, will compel a liberal as well as a critical patronage. As in the French Fete last year society folk are showing keen interest in these children's plays and are taking an active part in making their production a success.

Entertained in Denver.

Mr. Verner Z. Reed was host at the Denver club Wednesday evening at a dinner of 40 covers for Monsieur C. LeFoulon of Paris, France. Among the guests were the following from Colorado Springs: Mr. Oliver H. Shoup, Mr. Clarence Clark Hamlin, Mr. Arthur G. Sharp, Mr. Frank M. McMahon and Mr. Leonard Lyall Aitken.

Mr. Reed has announced his intention of joining Charles Craig, the famous artist, here in Colorado Springs, during the Shan Kive festivities for a "pow-wow" with Buckskin Charley and the older Indians who come up from the reservation at Ignacio just "for Auld Lang Syne." Twenty odd years ago these two friends used to go to the reservation on their sketching and painting expeditions, and Mr. Reed became so intimate with the Ute leaders that they initiated him into certain of the rites of the tribe. In this way he acquired a great deal of new information regarding the Utes and at the request of the bureau of anthropology prepared a monograph for the government on the subject. The program consisted of an interesting address by Mrs. Owen, a talk on scientific temperance by Mrs. Tiner, a W. C. T. U. worker of Nebraska, and singing by the union. Refreshments were served during the social hour. The next regular meeting will be held August 7 at the home of Mrs. McKay, 810 South Sierra st. Superintendents of different departments are requested to be prepared with their yearly reports.

A Unique Venture in the Field of Art

A New York Girl Amuses Society, Makes Some Money and Accomplishes Something Fine in the Field of Dramatic Art

from the Philadelphia North American.

Up in the hills of Westchester county, just north of New York city, the summer residents are enjoying a novel experience. Devotees of the drama who left the allurements of the city playhouses with a feeling of regret have their amusement served to them at their own doorstep with all the thrills that accompany a theatrical production in town, but minus the footlights and the oppressive atmosphere of the playhouse. Within the sylvan amphitheater of Miss Leonard's Brookside theater are under the auspices of fresco plays are being produced.

Motorists driving at up the Hudson late and between New York and Albany have been wont to pause in wonderment at a building by the roadside with a stage and proscenium arch, and wonder what it was all about.

In the foreground one gets a glimpse of a picturesque old farmhouse with a vine-covered porch overlooking a noisy little brook, the same brook by the way, that flanks the forest path. Along its banks grow big clumps of purple and white irises, and late in the season marigolds, white asters and [illegible] lean over the water's edge. A Japanese jungle lantern at one end of the flagstone bridge lends an oriental note to the scene. The more distant view takes in the picturesque sylvan amphitheater.

Follows Greek Ideas.

The playhouse is outlined on the stage side by a series of graceful Greek columns and is silhouetted in its highest portion against the high hill beyond. It seems as if nature meant to co-operate with Miss Leonard's desire to create an outdoor playhouse, for a ridge rises to the north, and at the end of this another ridge rises sharply to the west, curving and sloping gently to the south. Within the embrace of this slope Miss Leonard instituted her sylvan amphitheater.

In her mind's eye Miss Leonard could see, when she first took stock of her small place [illegible] years ago, how the [illegible] might be [illegible] to be [illegible] and [illegible]. THE WORLD OF FASHION

Paris Decrees Hats Close Fitting and Outlining the Shape of the Head - Velvet the Material of the Day - Trimmings Must Be Simple and Novel in Pose - The Jockey Cap.

TENNIER—the tall hat—and a Paris hat at that!

Why do hats always come first in the consideration of fall fashions? Here is an interesting topic of discussion from the standpoint of the feminine ways and, wherefore, but simply it to say that into the midst of our summer festivities, this frocked and light hatted, has come the first headwear of the approaching season, and it is a fact without dispute that it has caused more delighted excitement than would a whole regiment of fall frocks and suits.

Small, decidedly small, is the first and most striking characteristic of the millinery that is prophesied for coming favor, proving that the dainty little close fitting shapes which have held sway through the spring and summer are only to be emphasized and repeated and insisted on in the smart shapes that are already being brought out from the French salons—from the house of Suzet, from Maison Royale, from Virot and Lewis. Hats are small and moreover they sit close to the head, making necessary a greater simplicity of hair dressing, and giving the jaunty, classical smallness that is always so attractive in feminine heads, even when framed in the much loved large hat.

Shapes Are Eccentric and Individual.

Along with the delightful littleness of the hats of this fall, comes another attractive quality and that is the decided individuality of design. In fact it would seem that the milliners of Paris are going to the headdress of men for their inspiration in searching for original designs for the persistently popular small hat. Some of the models of this kind shown in Paris are extremely eccentric and not, the least so is the new student cap which has become the fad and if we may judge from the first fall showings of several of the smartest New York shops, it will come into very early and very decided favor here, as well. The jaunty little Tam O'Shanter shown is the creation of the Maison Royale and has been developed in hunter's green velvet, the flat crown sitting saucily up on a firm bandeau, around which has been draped a generous band of green moire ribbon, bowed broadly at the back and adding its proof to the prevalent use of ribbons for fall trimmings.

The Prevalence of the Tam.

This unique student cap prophesies the favor that will surely be shown to the tam shape in general, for there is already sufficient evidence to prove that the tam will be in high favor and after the true French fashion it will be the delight of the woman who loves soft and graceful effects, for great fluffy topped affairs these tams are, quite imposing in comparison with the modest student variety, and most easily disposed when artistic effects are desired. Easily disposed, because they depend for their "set" and their stiffness only on the firmness of silk goods, usually velvet of taffeta, quite unlined, and sewed to a deep little band, lined with buckram or not, to hold it to the head. Who but a French artist would dare to launch so uniform a bit of headgear and who better than the Parisian dame of fashion could pose it at that undeniable angle which would allure the very gods of Olympus to turn and look. The "tam" crown may be draped and shoved at the side, may be a big gathered puff or again may be shaped in sections. Some of the very smartest and newest French auto caps are fashioned after this style, and one which has recently come from a specialty shop on the Rue Royale is made of purple taffeta, shaped in six gores forming a wide tam that may be tilted to either side, to the front or the back, a jaunty and soft head covering that clings against the wind and looks pretty indeed tied under the ears.

The Jockey Cap Fad.

But the millinery that is creating the stir in the circle of fashions, quite the most and the prettiest of anything that has so far appeared for fall, is an cheerful borrowing, by the way from the head gear of the masculine persuasion and that is the visor effection like the visor of a jockey cap, unusually snappy, and giving that perked over the eyes set which is essential to the stylish hat of the day. The jockey cap idea has been quite especially seized by the French milliners, models that adds the most jaunty touch to the more mannish of the tailored suits that is this year as mannishness can be in the period when styles are feminized.

It is not always essential that the upper part of the cap be so pronounced a visor shape, though an unusually dashing model that was recently imported for the fall trousseau of a western heiress, was possessed of the decided jockey cap character still, it was still, yet the visor shape was more the dashing touch to glossy straws that are to be worn with the dainty afternoon frocks.

But whatever of design goes hand in hand with simplicity of trimming, the becomingness and the style of the hat depends on the posing on the head rather than on a loading of decorative materials. And in most cases it is well that it is simple for all the dash possible in millinery is given by the extreme slenderness of the added ornament, a dash that would be only lacking in a mass of overtopping trimming. For this reason we find Paris heading tenaciously to her beloved aigrettes, nunnidie and ours, while quills, and towering fancies of ostrich and coque, flint skyward from the back, front or side of the tiny shapes that hold them, sometimes seeming to overtop them.

Ribbons and Velvet Held a Bit of Mystery.

But with all the favor for feather trimmings in tall upstanding ornaments on the little hats of the moment, the revival of ribbon trimmings is coming in very strong in the land of Paris hats, in fact, quite the newest sort of fancies are made of ribbons, tall loops, big butterfly bows, and tiny touches. This revival of ribbons will be welcomed here in America where there is so decided a liking for graceful effects, as well as for the dash that is really American. Often among these first prophetic chapeaux of the season there will be seen one that carries out the entire trimming scheme in a fancy ribbon; while again just a bit of a bow will be posed on a plain surface to give a softening harmonious effect in keeping with the general plan of the hat.

With the true Parisian perversity fashionable women are already in the middle of summer, wearing velvet hats with their flimsiest of summer toilettes—of soft silk, lace or machine embroidery—and the first waft of autumn that has come through the customs house is bringing us innumerable little designs of soft and luxurious velvet, in all the phases of fall hats from severe and simple for the tailored costume, to the elaborate and dreamy—yes, and dreamy, too!

Velvet and moline, malina and velvet! Again do we experience the perversity of the French savour in the matter of things fashionable, combining in the new headgear two materials that are most violent in contrast, yet with a violence that charms us and that we recognize as alluringly French—velvet of the fall and moline of the summer, in every instance.

While enticing little [illegible] of [illegible] have [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] who, proud the [illegible] have darned their pretty heads with [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] no means exhausted the love of the filmy material and for that reason, even so many of the Paris creations that have been designed for [illegible] when the summer days are done, are of malina. The [illegible] of the summer have been the [illegible] the peek-a-boo soft that showed the pretty hair dressing through the gauzy crowns entirely unlined and the brims just a few layers of the stuff, on a wire foundation, to carry the garniture of flowers or a big maline butterfly.

As a matter of course, since velvet is to be the material par excellence of the coming season, we are hardly surprised to find it in combination with velvet, not merely as a trimming but the two stuffs actually put together as would be two heavy or two lighter stuffs. For instance, some of the newer suggestions from the workshops of the great hat-makers of Paris, give velvet brims with close crowns made of tulle just as filmy and transparent as were those of the summer days, the shape of the head giving the contour to the crown. To this bit of maline is attached the eccentric brim made of velvet and so managed that it may look as heavy and wintry as desired, just as heavy as if the crown too were made of velvet. These eccentric novelties worn by the chic Parisienne, posed on the simply coiffured head at a smart angle, look sometimes like a brim only, since the crown is so sheer as to be [illegible] detectable.

Hand Fashioned Lingerie for Summer Needlework

IT IS the unusual woman who, when packing the vacation trunk, does not slip into some nook or crinny a bit of needlework for idle hours. Perhaps she has not the slightest intention of bending over sewing if there is other diversion aplenty in prospect, but one never can tell, when a rainy day may come, and if the summer resort should happen to be not quite as gay as one hopes—there is always the bit of needlework to fall back upon. Most women, moreover, who lead active lives at home feel the need, after the first glorious week of loafing and resting is over, of some occupation. If tennis, swimming or golf prove too strenuous for sultry mornings needlework on the verands will have its charm, and it is a wise woman who turns those semi leisure hours to account and brings home after the summer vacation, not patiently embellished doilies and tracloths for more or less appreciative friends at Christmas time, but dainty lingerie garments in which she, herself, may take delight all winter long.

Handmade underraiment is the most costly and exclusive sort and yet so easy is it to fashion exquisitely dainty and well fitting garments—and so quickly does the pretty work go, on the summer veranda—that almost before one realizes it a dozen articles of apparel may be turned off.

Just now silken underwear is the mode and the most expensive models in the specialty shops are of crepe de chine or soft China silk in white or colors. Pure white is by far the dominant for undergarments and women of fastidious taste never don anything but white, indulging the color-longing by the addition of little silk bonnets or rosettes of ribbon. It is also a pretty fashion to embroider white lingerie with the initials or name of the owner in color, the tint, of course, matching the trimming of ribbon. Ten yards of white China silk, at seventy cents to a dollar the yard, will make quite a number of garments, if the cutting is done cleverly, nightgown sleeves, facings and sections of brassieres being taken out of the smaller pieces left after cutting the larger garments. All lingerie is fashioned now on such narrow, clinging lines, that really, very little material is required. Only the length of a nightgown need be planned for—the sleeves may be cut kimona fashion from the doubled length of fabric; or may be added in the shape of lace ruffles. Yokes of lace, forming short sleeves, and attached to the gown below the bust by embroidery beading for ribbons, are much used at present. Such a yoke will deduct at least half a yard from the required measurement of silk which forms the main portion of the garment. The same is true concerning chemises and combinations. Very little crepe de chine, in fact, was used to make the dainty combination brassiere and petticoat pictured and the gores for the skirt portion were secured at the edge of the material after two nightgowns were cut out. This little petticoat is gored, rather than gathered at the waistline, to insure a perfectly flat effect over the hips, and petticoat and brassiere are attached by a narrow, ribbon-run beading of machine embroidery. The use of fine machine embroideries in hand-fashioned lingerie is a feature of modern high class garments of this character. Note that the silk portion of the brassiere does not rise above the armpits, the rounded top being of embroidery and lace. The armhole is unseen with a hand-hemmed casing through which ribbon is run and the top of the brassiere is finished in the same manner. Before cutting into expensive silk for such garments it is well to have a perfectly fitting pattern of some inexpensive fabric like lawn. Cut and fit the lawn garment, mark out on it the location of the lace trimming and then rip it apart for a pattern. By this means no silk need be wasted while one experiments with the trimming design.

All seams in fine lingerie must be felled or French-seamed that is, stitched first on the right side of the garment, clipped close and then stitched on the wrong side. Number 150 cotton thread and a very fine needle should be used and very small stitches taken. Hems may be run with a line of these tiny stitches if this is easier than the painstaking hemming stitch. No lingerie garment may call itself aristocratic these days unless it is soft and fine enough to be drawn through its wearer's bracelet; and not often has a machine-stitched garment this soft quality.

The pantaloon pictured is of very fine cotton mull and the ruffles on this particular model are accordion plaited, the pantaloon having come from a shop of French extraction. Simple, gathered ruffles, however, would be quite as dainty, and will stand laundering better. The drawer is trimmed most elaborately with broad lace, mitred into vandyke effect, and the mull is so soft that the garment has little bulk at the waistline even though slightly gathered at the back.

Mull is a trifle too transparent for nightgowns, and nainsook, equally soft in texture, is usually the material selected for these garments. Three and a half yards of nainsook should make a nightgown like the one pictured for a woman who is not very tall. Measure from bust to floor, add three inches for a hem, and three inches more for good measure, as the nightgown to be up-to-date, must cling softly on the carpet around the feet. All daintily made nightgowns are long enough to cover the feet completely and the garment must be lifted slightly when its wearer moves about. This gown measures not more than a yard and a half round at the foot and is shaped gracefully, above the hips fitting to the figure. The top is in kimono cut, the short kimono sleeve being finished over the top with insertions of lace. The deep yoke is of lace also, and a medallion of fine machine embroidery is set at the front, where the lace is joined. Knotted rosettes of ribbon trim the sleeve and front of the gown.

Even petticoats are now made by hand, and the labor is not excessive since the modern petticoat is a mere wisp of an affair, combining a neatly fitting, gored top of nainsook and a flounce of lace or fine machine embroidery applied, under a ribbon-run beading. Sometimes the embroidery flounce is set on entirely without gathers—when it is not more than six or eight inches deep; but deeper flounces must be very slightly gathered, or taken up at the top in groups of pintucks, to give a graceful fullness. All petticoats except those designed for wear with elaborate negligees are rather short now, falling just to the top of the buttoned boot.
